REVIEW BODY FAVORS MITCHELL VERDICT

A HOUSE BODY BEGINS FOURTH PROBE IN YEAR

Military Committee Launches Investigation Similar To Those Of Three Other Groups--War Department Offers Suggestions For Improvement.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—For the fourth time within a year the virtues and shortcomings of the army air service came under review here today at a public hearing.

With a view to corrective legislation the house military committee began an inquiry covering ground similar to that traversed in turn by the house aircraft committee, the president's air board and the Mitchell courtmartial.

To aid in the drafting of an air service bill, the war department made public an outline of the congressional action it considers necessary to carry out the recommendations of the air board. This outline proposed the following amendments to the present law:

Changing the name "army air service" to "air corps."

Appointment of a second assistant secretary of war to supervise aviation.

Appointment of three assistant army air chiefs with the rank of brigadier general.

Temporary increase in rank for certain classes of air officers.

More Pay for Fliers.

More pay and extra government life insurance for fliers.

Revival of the decoration "order of merit" to reward extra-ordinary peace time achievements in any branch of the army.

Authorization for purchase of air craft without competitive bidding.

Provisions to expand the training of enlisted men as pilots.

The war department expects to propose later a five year project to bring army aviation up to the desired strength.

The immediate business before the military committee when it began its hearing today was a bill by Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, proposing a department of national defense with under secretaries for the army, the navy and air. This proposal failed to receive the approval of the air board.

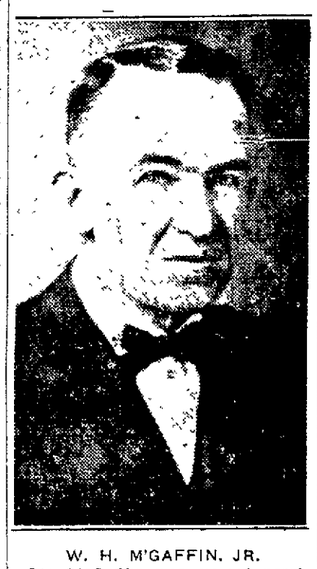

Would Cut Expenses.

Representative Hill told the committee his plan would enormously decrease expenses and "secure that co-ordination in time of peace of all defense activities which is essential, not six months after an emergency arises, but immediately upon the development of the necessity for a defense situation."

Col. William Mitchell, whose public attacks on present air policies led to his conviction by court martial, was a spectator at the hearing and will testify later unless the war department objects.

Another house committee, that dealing with naval affairs, today heard testimony from Lieut. Com. Charles E. Rosendahl, senior surviving officer on the wrecked Shenandoah, as to the war time practicability of dirigibles of that type. Such air liners, he said, are safer over sea than land because of the difference in air currents.

Bids Opened On Hospital Building

Bids for the construction of a new inmate building at the Hastings state hospital for insane were opened by the board of control at 2 p. m. Tuesday. Separate propositions were submitted for plumbing and heating and for electric wiring. The legislature appropriated $125,000 for the building. About 20,000 of this must be reserved for its equipment.

Indirect Reply To Norris By White House

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(I. N. S.)—An indirect reply to charges by Senator Norris, republican of Nebraska, that President Coolidge was "violating the law of the land by attempting to influence decisions of appointees to federal regulatory commissions, was given at the white house today.

The white house spokesman declared that these agencies, such as the federal trade, interstate commerce and tariff commissions were responsible to the laws that created them and not to the president or to congress.

Only cabinet officers, the president held, are directly responsible to the executive.

RANGE FROM $175 TO $1,000 AN ACRE

Board Impressed With Offer Of 20 Acres South Of Normal, Several Weeks Time To Be Spent Viewing Sites Before Decision Is Made.

More than 50 offers of suburban and farm tracts in and around Lincoln have ben received in writing by the board of control as proposed new sites for the state home for dependent children. The propositions come from 40 different individual owners or agents and range in price from $175 an acre, on unimproved land, up to $175 an acre, on unimproved land, up to $1,000 an acre for choice areas suitable to be sold for residental purposes.

The board of control recently invited bids on tracts of 20 to 25 acres each, preferably unimproved, and close enough to Lincoln to assure water, electrical and sewage connections and permit the children of the home to attend the city schools. It hopes to get something that will fill the bill for an outlay of $200 to $250 or $300 an acre. Most of the offers that have come in are above these figures, but several sites have been tendered within that limit which look good to the board.

Several weeks' time will be spent

Memory Lapse Crown Goes To Leipsic Educator

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The prize for professional forgetfulness has been awarded the dean of the faculty of philosophy at Leipsic university.

A new professor, in accord with German etiquette, called at the home of the dean aand announced his readiness to begin work. He wore a top hat and a Prince Albert, as is customary.

The dean chatted with him for about ten minutes and suddenly rose, took up his hat, bowed and exclaimed:

"Excuse me, sir, for taking up so much of your time."

He then left his home under the delusion that it was he who was paying the visit.

COUNTY WILL SPEND MORE

Commissioners Make Up Annual Budget For 1926 Showing An Increase Of $31,600 In General Fund Expenditures.

FALL ELECTION TO REQUIRE BIG SUM

County Attorney's Office To Be Fitted Up In Courthouse; No Decreases Shown In Any Item Of Estimate.

An increase of $31,600 in general fund expenditures for 1926 is contemplated by the Lancaster county commissioners. They made up the annual budget totaling $519,850 and published it Tuesday morning while in regular session.

The big item of expense is for the fall elections, estimated at $25,000. There is also a $3,000 advance in the charity budget; $2,000 advance in mothers' pensions; $1,000 advance in blind pensions and county building repairs; and $600 increase in the Lancaster County Agricultural society allowance.

No decreases were made in any item of estimate. One might have been arranged in that of public building repairs, but for the prospective cost of fitting up a county attorney's office in the court house.

Max G. Towle, the only candidate who has filed for that office so far, has made known his intention to move to the court house if he is elected. The commissioners believe that any other candidate would also be willing to have offices there instead of in some down town building. Formerly the county attorney's office at the court house was in the room now used by Treasurer Suther land for his auto license department. That work has grown so much that there is little chance of crowding it back into its original quarters.

Commissioner T. J. Hensley suggests that the north portion of Court Room No. 1, now occupied by Judge Stewart, be cut off by a partition. Three offices could be ar-

Richard Laufman, who would have been three years old Wednesday, died at 5:15 p. m., Monday, twenty minutes after he was run over and crushed by northbound street car at Tenth and H streets.

The boy, who was the son of Mr and Mrs. L. L. Laufman, 812 H street, was caught by the left wheels of the car when he dashed onto the track after alighting with his mother and his brother. His body was caught near the abdomen and it was necessary to left the trolley car in order to free the body.

A Castle, Roper, Matthews ambulance took the boy to the Lincoln sanitarium. He died a few minutes later.

Mrs. Laufman, the mother, was a witness to the accident. She was returning with her two small boys from a visit at the St. Elizabeth's hospital, where her father, John Fitzgerald, is confined as the result of infirities sustained in a bad fall on New Year's day.

The mother had lifted Richard from the car, according to her story and turned to get Robert, 4 years old, the other son. When she had lifted him clear of the car doors Nestle sounded his gong and put the car in motion. Richard had run in front of the car and was caught as it moved forward.

Hope Pershing Will Return to His Task

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The state department is still hopeful that General Pershing may return to Arica, after treatment here, to resume the presidency of the Tacna-Arica plebiscitary commission despite the disclosure Saturday that he regards the situation there as almost hopeless under present conditions.

The question of his return, however, is one which General Pershing alone will decide. He has informed the department that he was coming home because of his health and officials here, in the absence of other information, still assume that he will return if his health permits.

CITY AS WHOLE WORTH PRAISING

Tomson Says That Conditions In Lincoln Have Undergone Change.

Lincoln people do not fully realize what they have to offer as an inducement for people out in the state to come to the capital city, Frank D. Tomson told members of the Rotary club at the weekly luncheon Tuesday noon at the Lincoln hotel.

In the past, he said, there has been a tendency to stress the importance of the individual institutions but that day has passed an a new condition exists. The numerous individual things stressed heretofore, he declared, "have crystalized into an entity of which any person should be glad to talk. People should now talk more about the whole city than about any one institution.

George Holmes, chairman of a survey sub-committee of the chamber of commerce city planning committee, in 1925, he said, the committee made a survey of the territory for a distance of about three miles from the city in all directions with the purpose in mind of selecting roads which may be designated as main arteries leading into the city. Mr. Holmes also told of the work done toward locating suitable places for parks, the marking of studies of possible corrections of conditions inside the city limits.

Arthur Bowring of Merryman, president of the Nebraska Good Roads association spoke briefly on Nebraska's road program, and asked Rotary to lend its support in helping bring it to a successful conclusion.

JOHNSON AND REED PREPARE TO OPEN FIRE

Tribunal Adherence Advocates Make Informal Canvass To Decide Whether Debate Can Be Limited Following Monday Filibuster--Dawes Amused.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(I. N. S.)—Peace negotiations between the administration-democratic coalition and the senate irreconcilables over fixing a date for final vote on American adherence to the World court, failed today because of opposition by Senator Cole Blease, democrat of South Carolina.

After blocking a peace move for voting on February 10, Blease offered a resolution in the senate proposing December 8, 1926, as a date or the final vote on the court. His resolution came as a surprise both to court adherents and the irreconcilables.

With the peace negotiations defeated, court leaders resumed their campaign to invoke coture. There were some indications it might not be supported by the two-thirds majority necessary.

Administration leaders decided to sidetrack the new tax reduction bill until either a vote is reached or a date is fixed for a final vote on the court.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Skirmishing over the World court continues in the senate, with its opponents, victorious thus far in delaying a vote, bringing up more ammunition. And Vice President Dawes, champion of

A NEW TOLEDO WOMAN VICTIM OF 'CLUBBER'

Body Of Miss Mary Handley, 42, Seventh Attacked, Found Near Home.

Authorities Renew Efforts To Find Man Who Spread Terror Reign.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The body of Mary Handley, 42, seventh victim of a "clubber" in Toledo in less than a year, was found early today in a yard next to her home. Her head was crushed and she had been gagged with strips of cloth torn from her clothing.

Bloodstains on the sidewalk, police said, indicated Miss Handley had been attacked there and dragged into the yard. The body was found by Mrs. Mattie Sturrell when she started her daughter to school today. It was covered with a rain coat.

The scene of the tragedy is in the heart of the district where the "clubber" operated a few months ago.

Miss Handley is the third woman whose death is attributed to the clubber and four women have been injured.

Miss Handley had been away from her home since Sunday morning. She had gone on a trip and was expected to return Sunday night.

Police Renew Drive.

With the finding of the body of Miss Handley, fear of the clubber again spread throughout the city and the authorities were renewing efforts to find the man who has

CONVICTION OF AIR COLONEL IS APPROVED

Action Affirming Decision Of Courtmartial, Insofar As Legal Aspects Of Trial Are Concerned, Taken By War Department Board Of Review.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Conviction of Col. William Mitchell by an army courtmartial for violation of the ninety-sixth article of war was approved today by the war department board of review insofar as legal aspects of the trial are concerned.

The trial record, with the board's report, will be forwarded probably within the next day or so to the judge advocate general of the army and after thorough examination by him will be started on its way through Secretary Davis, to President Coolidge.

Action of the board of review, which considered the record wholly from a legal standpoint, would seem to put at rest all speculation as to the constitutional right of the court to sentence Colonel Mitchell to suspension for five years from duty, command and rank in the army, as well as deprive him of all pay and allowances for five years.

Maj. Gen. J. A. Hull, the judge advocate, probably will forward the papers to Secretary Davis this week, and it is not expected that the Secretary will delay its delivery to President Coolidge.

Until the president acts, the court's findings, which grew out of Colonel Mitchell's criticisms of the war and navy departments, cannot be made effective.

Coolidge to Move Cautiously.

Regardless of the recommendations Secretary Davis and General Hull may see fit to make, it is regarded likely that Mr. Coolidge will give most careful attention to the pay forfeiture before he determines what his course of action will be.

It is within the president's power to commute all or any part of the sentence.

Neither Secretary Davis nor General Hull has given any indication of what their recommendations will be. Some legal authorities believe it is within the range of possibilities that the president will commute the five year suspension to two and one half years and in addition will allow the officer some part of his regular pay and allowances.

A reduction of the five year period by half would cause the sentence to expire before the time Col-

$4,128 Bequest In Edwin Bond Will For City Hospital

A check for 4,128.81, the amount of a bequest in the will of the late Edwin Bond, was left with City Treasurer Gillaspie Tuesday morning by E. C. Ricketts, administrator of the estate.

A letter accompanying the check says the money "is the distribution share given the city of Lincoln for the purpose of the erection of maintenance of a city hospital in Lincoln, under the last will and testament of Edwin Bond.

The amount will be credited to the Lincoln General hospital fund, City Clerk Berg said.

Mr. Bond was killed in May, 1925 by being run down by an automobile at Twenty-sixth and O streets.

Mrs. Valentino Granted Divorce At Paris From 'Sheik Of Films'

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Winifred Hudnut (Natacha Rambova) was granted a divorce from Rudolph Valentino, motion picture actor, today on grounds of abandonment.

The wife was held to have retained her American citizenship because she married Valentino on March 15, 1923, a year after the passage of the Cable act, preserving the citizenship of American women marrying foreigners. This conclusion enabled the court to award her the decree.

Miss Rambova filed action on December 17, and at the hearing on January 12 it was stated that the court believed the suit well founded. The only remaining question was that of determining her citizenship. The laws of Italy do not recognize divorce.

Miss Rambova, the daughter of a Salt Lake City man named Shaughnessy, took the name Winifred Hudnut, after her adoption by Richard Hudnut of New York.

Rudolph Sails for U. S.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Jan. 19.—(I. N. S.)—Rudolph Valentino and Sophie Tucker were among the passengers sailing for New York today on the S. S. Leviathan. Sophie Tucker has cancelled engagements in England on account of the illness of her mother.

Valentino said he expected to learn, the result of his divorce case while aboard the Leviathan.

"My time is too valuable, however, to wait for the result," Valentino added.

Valentino was certain the divorce would go through. Recommendation was made several days ago and the final decree appeared but a matter of formality.

The Valentino divorce action follows a "marital vacation" which finally resulted in Natacha Rambova Valentino going to Paris and requesting a divorce.

Valentino also went to Paris and supported his wife's action.

He has declared that he is through with marriage forever.

Man in the Moon Had No Say

With the ocean tides subject to lunar control, there is both ebb and flow—now high, now low. But there is a tide about which the man in the moon has nothing to say. This tide has no ebb—it is always high—it is the tide of results that wash in from ads in the classified section of the Star.

This is the tide that does wait for men and women and yet never keeps them waiting for results. Among the many who have discovered this fact is Mrs. L. W. Neff, 1330-15th street. When she wanted laundry work to do she placed an ad in the classified.

In three days the tide of results that flowed in almost swamped her, for she secured all the work she could do.

As the ocean tides wash away a sand pile, an ad tide will sweep away the difficulties YOU meet in buying or selling, in service or merchandise.

APPEAL IS HEARD IN RINGER CASE

Counsel for Condemned Man Says Confession Obtained Through Duress.

State Contends Circumstantial Evidence Strong Enough to Convict.

Donald Ringer's appeal from the sentence of death imposed on him for the murder of Carl Moore, in Adams county, was heard by the Nebraska supreme court Tuesday morning on arguments presented in his behalf by Attorney J. E Willis of Hastings and for the prosecution by Assitant Attorney General Lloyd Dort. Ringer's sister, about 15 years of age, sat in the courtroom during the pleas made for and against him.

The defense counsel conteded that the written confession made by Ringer to Chief of Police Duncan at St. Joseph, on his way back to Nebraska after being arrested in a southern state, was obtained through intimidation and duress, and therefore should not have been admitted in evidence Objection was also made to other confessions Ringer made at different times to the county attorney, sheriff and deputy sheriff of Adams county, the sheriff of Greeley county, a fellow prisoner in jail, and to a brother of Moore, as testified to by them in the trial.

Had these statements been excluded, Attorney Willis insisted, there was not sufficient evidence to convict Ringer.

Assistant Attorney General Dort said the circumstantial evidence was strong enough to prove the defendant's guilt, regardless of his own confessions, and that they were properly admitted as corroborative of the other facts proven. He called attention to the plea of guilty which Ringer made at his preliminary hearing, afterward withdrawn

The case had been set for the last one on the day's calendar and would not have been reached, in the usual course, until afternoon, but as Chief Justice Morrissey was leaving before noon to speak before a state meeting of county attorneys at Grand Island, it was advanced to the head of the list in order that the full bench might hear it

British Singers Favor a Big Meal Before Appearing

LONDON, Jan 19—(AP) — Most English operatic singers are said to be agreed that a hearty meal and tankard of ale before an appearance is the best inducement for a first rate performance.

"A majority of the English singers eat heartily," says Gibson Young, director of the Community Singers 'My own plan of campaign prior to singing is to have as hearty a meal as can be found and a pint tankard of good beer. I witnessed about ten years ago a famous baritone and a famous tenor sit down together—just before a big concert—to a huge meal of tripe and onions and stout, and both went to the hall smoking large cigars

Assassination Of Soviet Regretted By Swiss Body

GENEVA, Jan. 19—(By the Associated Press)—The Republica Agency says the Swiss Federal Council, which meets today, is disposed to express regret for the assassination of the soviet envoy Vaslav Vorovsky at Lausanne in 1923 and to study the possibility of granting a pension to his daughter

The council's meeting today is to discuss the question of restoring relations with Russia, which were broken off by the latter following the acquittal of Maurice Conradi, Swiss engineer, who was tried on a charge of murdering Vorovsky

Conradi confessed to shooting the soviet envoy, but pleaded justification in that members of his family had been murdered by bolsheviki in Russia.

In its contemplated action, the agency says, the council seeks to meet the desires of the powers that Switzerland place nothing in the way of Russia's participation in the proposed disarmament conference here under the auspices of the League of Nations

The soviet government accepted the invitations to the preparatory disarmament conference only on condition that it be not held on Swiss soil.

Divorce Asked By Fawn Gray

BALTIMORE, Jan 19—(A. P.)—Fawn Gray, dancer, who stepped into the limelight when Harry K Thaw escorted her about the night clubs of New York, filed suit in Baltimore Circuit court Monday for annulment of a marriage of two months ago to Theodore MacFarland of Philadelphia

More recently, she again came to notice in connection with the Thaw name when Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, recovering from self-administered poison in a Chicago hospital and whom the dancer described as "an old friend," refused to see her In the petition filed yesterday, she revealed herself as Gladys Marie Brown, daughter of a New York cartoonist.

The marriage took place in New York, the annulment petition states, as the climax of a three day party starting in Philadelphia when the dancer "was in a weak mental and physical state, unable to use her reasoning faculties to know what she was doing."

The petition further alleges that while she was "in such an irresponsible condition, MacFarland, through fraud, misrepresentation, duress and deceit," caused the marriage ceremony to be performed

J. Charles Fagan, attorney for the dancer, entered the petition Walter J. Fleming was named guardian for the purpose of the suit, Miss Gray's age having been stated as 20.

MacFarland's age was given as 27.

Predicts Failure For Attempt To Fly Over Arctic

SEATTLE, Wash, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Failure of an airplane expedition to be led by Capt. Hubert Wilkins over the Arctic ocean from Point Barrow, Alaska, in search of a continent between Alaska and the North Pole was predicted here Monday by Capt. E. T. McIntyre, veteran Alaskan trader, musher and adventurer

To avoid adverse weather conditions, the Wilkins party plans to hop off early in the season, either the latter part of March or early April

"By doing so," said McIntyre, "they rightfully figure that they would beat the fog. Arctic fogs do not rise that early in the season"

"But," he added, "they are assuming they will haul their fuel for their airplanes with snow motors to Point Barrow across the country from Fairbanks between now and the time set for the hop-off They will never get across the Endicott range. They will find no esy trail, but great hummocks of snow and ice that their tractors can't crawl over or go around. Even dogs could not haul all that gasoline across the mountains at this time of year, but dogs would come nearer doing it than tractors."

FOUR HELD IN BABY MIX-UP

New York Woman Admits Buying Child For $20 After Claiming Kidnaped.

NEW YORK, Jan 19—(By the Associated Press.)—Mrs. Wesley Blauvelt gave $20 for a baby and when she feared exposure announced that the baby had been kidnaped, the police asserted today The reasons were mother love and a desire to hold her husband's affection.

Mrs. Blauvelt has confessed, police say, that she paid the money to the baby's real parents When the child's mother repented, Mrs Blauvelt told of a kidnapping to hide the deceit from her husband.

The baby, called "Helen Blauvelt," has been sought for two days and was discovered with her real parents, Mr. and Mrs John Murphy, at their Brooklyn home last night.

Blue eyed Gertrude Frances Murphy, two and a half years old, has been turned over to the Children's society. Her parents and Mr and Mrs Blauvelt are under arrest. They are held for a hearing in $1,000 bail The Blauvelts are accused of disorderly conduct in furnishing false information to the police and the Murphys of improper guardianship

Before Magistrate McQuade in Night court, Mr. and Mrs. Murphy said the child had never been lost or stolen.

For more than two years Mrs Blauvelt led her husband to believe he was the father of a child being boarded with relatives in Allentown Pa When he insisted on seeing the baby, she became desperate, police say, and answered an advertisement offering Gertrude for adoption

The Murphys said they had offered Gertrude for adoption because of illness and poverty in their family.

SEE 'COMMUNISM' AT OHIO SCHOOL

Columbus Physician Tells Investigators of "Youth Movement" at University.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Investigation of alleged liquor law violations today was completely overshadowed by charges of communistic activities of Ohio State university professors as the committee of university trustees continued its inquiry

Testimony of seven Columbus police officers was introduced before the committee, the officers agreeing that conditions at the university were constantly improving and that they knew of no liquor law violations among faculty members or students.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 19.—By the Associated Press)—Communism and "the youth movement" have footholds at Ohio State university, Dr. Clarence Maris, Columbus physician and political writer, declared yesterday before the university investigating committee. Both communism and "the youth movement" are subject to orders from Moscow, he said.

Dr. Maris described the youth movement as teaching "worship of the human body and resistance to parental restraint" The socialistic organization, which he declared existed at Ohio university, is a branch of the League of Industrial Democracy he said

The committee is investigating charges of alleged communism and drinking at the university brought following the arrest of Dabney Horton, English instructor, for illegal manufacture of liquor.

Dr. Maris admitted authorship of the Hopley resolution introduced into the Ohio senate last year, proposing an investigation of alleged "red" activities at the university and state educational institutions.

Again Names Instructors.

He mentioned again the names of Ohio State instructors which appeared in the Hopley resolutions.

The resolution was never acted on but was made part of the senate record. The resolution was introduced at yesterday's hearing and made part of the investigation.

Dr Maris said that Prof C C. North, head of the sociology department, "is active in seditious organization at Ohio State"

North, together with Profs H. R. Spencer and F. W. Coker of the political science department; Prof. J. A Leighton of the philosophy department, in a communistic meeting in Columbus he declared.

At the time the Hopley resolution was introduced last year, these professors denied connections with the "forty-eighters" a radical organization.

DR. S. L. JOSHI VISITING HERE

Is Now Connected With the University Of Colorado At Denver.

Dr. S L Joshi, who was formerly exchange professor from the University of Bombay, India, to the University of Nebraska, is visiting today and Wednesday in Lincoln at the home of Robert Minor, 304 Lei Lau Earl apartments. Dr. Joshi is returning from Cambridge, Mass, where he spent the holidays with his son, Sunder, and his daughter, Anandibar. He will proceed to Denver where he is now engaged at the University of Colorado

After leaving Lincoln two years ago to deliver a commencement address at the University of Colorado he became permanently connected with that school. He has organized a number of classes in comparative religion and is also filling lecture engagements at Colorado Springs and Pueblo

The courses in comparative religion at the university are meeting with great success, Dr Joshi said "The college students of today are drawing away from the old theological studies These courses take up the cultural side of theology and deal with the great truths that are common to all religions They are attracting the students and at the same time are offering some means of anchoring them to religion," he said.

Dr Joshi's daughter, Anandibar, attended the University of Nebraska for a short time and is now at Vassar college. His son, Sunder, will graduate this year from Harvard

Suggests Plans to Improve Condition Of American Farmer

KANSAS CITY, Jan 19—(AP)—The agricultural states of the middlewest and south are bearing the brunt of a post war reversal of trade balances between the United States and Europe, H A. Wallace, Des Moines, Ia, editor of a farm publication, testified here yesterday before the interstate commerce commission freight rate hearing The hearing is on the application of western railroads for a 5 per cent rate increase.

Mr Wallace, son of the late secretary of agriculture, presented an exhibit on behalf of the corn belt committee, representing agricultural organizations in the corn belt states which purported to show that farmers in Iowa, Illinois and Missouri have been receiving for some years an annual return on their investment considerably less that 5 3-4 per cent, which the commission deems a fair return for railroads

Mr Wallace suggested four plans, which he believed might improve the conditions of the corn belt and southern farmers.

They were;

Reduction of production surplus crops

Take the tariff off all European manufactured products, so that the prices of such products could be bought within the range of the farm purchaser

Inauguration of the Dickinson export market plan

Permitting the farmer to work out their own problems.

'SONG OF FLAME' IS HAMMERSTEIN BID FOR RENOWN

Producer's Latest Achievement Rivals the Late "Rose Marie."

Settings and Music Gorgeous, But Spark of Wit Is Lacking.

BY BUSHNELL DIAMOND.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—The big news in a week so devoid of novelties that it seems indecently naked is that Arthur Hammerstein has tried to achieve another "Rose-Marie" and has almost made the grade The impresario's second attempt is labeled "Song of the Flame," and to say that it glitters and bubbles with color and moves to liquid melody is to call a bird of paradise a sparrow.

Joseph Urban's settings in their best estate, to be sure, are not an unknown quantity in the metropolis The Follies, and Mr. Gatti's golden cage of song buds at Fortieth street, and some of the Princess intimacies have shown us that, within his bounds the Viennese is without peer as a theatrical architect.

But in "Song of the Flame" he has quite outdone himself, not with cheap and easy ostentation, but with that masterly restraint plus gorgeousness which nine-tenths of the scene designers in the world would give their noses and elbows to possess If beauty is your goal in the theater, then go straight to "Song of the Flame"

But if you are one of those divertible oafs like myself who like a smart crack now and then, a little leaven of wild hilarity, then "Song of the Flame" will not singe your risibilities For pure splendor, it boils For humor, it is not so good; indeed its antics are way below zero Although it must in fairness be added that two capital clown, Bernard Gorcey, who ambled through "Wildflower," and Hugh Cameron, the delightful grotesque of "As You Were," do their stuff neatly.

Mr Hammerstein's noted fussiness about casting and his Napoleonic gruelling at rehearsals have this time yielded other nice results. There is, for one, Tessa Kosta, more suitably in character than at any time since "Caroline," singing with purity and clearness of line There is, too, the dependable Guy Robertson, also late of "Wildflower," as blonde and bland as usual and very much appreciated by the tattoed countesses out in front. And there is, best of all, Ula Sharon, that divinest and most delicately artificial of the dancers, reviving memories of her triumph last season in the fourth Music Box Revue. All in all, a fine troupe

Mr Gershwin, who appears to be the Noel Coward of 1926 music, contributes some of the best tunes, with Herbert Stothart doing more than his bit But—and here comes the unpleasant wallop in the situation—the locale of the piece is Russia, and Mr Gershwin's and Mr Stothart's music is about as Russian as a Staten Island ferryboat

However, the somewhat doughty libretto and other little factors will probably not prevent large droves from attending "Song of the Flame" It looks as if it were "in" already

The only other opening of the week, as I write, was a series of try-out matinees by Hermann Lieb, that admirable character actor, of his own plays, sinisterly entitled "Dope" This "Dope," which a Sunday night audience sat through, proved to be a slightly bloated version of the old one-act vaudeville sketch of the same title, by Joseph Medill Patterson, the publisher. It was a riot on the big time, but I doubt if it has sufficient drive in its new and extended form to do much business, although certain episodes are skilfully managed

In "Dope" we see Mary Blair in a part dear to her acting heart—that of a society girl who marries a truck driver, takes to alcohol, drugs and blue veils The point of the plot is that she died instead of being murdered, which seems a slight let-down Mr. Lieb has assembled a good cast, and his stage crew's handling of the various cutbacks is a marvel of endurance and quiet.

The movies, the opera and the foreign drama all had something interesting to contribute to an otherwise barren week. The indefatigable Russians at the Jolson submitted, or rather exposed, their own version of "Carmen," now called 'Carmencita and the Soldier" The Russian version stresses Mer-imee rather than Bizet. There is a much closer sticking to the actual story, but the music is all there, most of it sung by the stationary chorus, in the manner of "Le Coq d'Or." An odd experiment, and one that is apt to get you, no matter how much you may fancy you prefer the Victorian method that they give at the "regular" opera houses

The Metropolitan was the scene of the first American production of "La Cena della Beffe." This is none other than your old friend, "The Jest," which the two Barrymore men sol triumphantly did several years ago. Unfortunately, Sam Benelli, the author, entrusted his blazing and horrific tale to Giordano, of all composers! The result is music that nearly attains perfect trash as a label, but the story is so stout and sure-fire that there are many thrills.

The largest and most expensive and most eagerly awaited of the new pictures is "Ben-Hur." There is no need at this late time to go into the detailed agonies of its making and re-making; everyone has read of that The concrete sum of the sweat and expense is that a truly impressive film has emerged, rich in an intelligent beauty that respects the test of the Lew Wallace narrative, and yet gives it the glamor and the glow of something more living than the written word. Ramon Novarro and Betty Bronson carry off the chief honors, and the chariot race is all that I had hoped it would be.

Iowa Corn Crop Worth 50 Million More Than 1924

AMES, Ia, Jan 19—It is reasonable to estimate that Iowa's 1925 corn crop will net Iowa farmers between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 more than the 1924 crop, a radio audience was told last night by Dean C. F. Curtiss of the division of agriculture of Iowa State college

Speaking over WOI, the college's broadcasting station, Dean Curtiss said he did not think that a careful analysis of the farm problem would reveal conditions as bad as they have been presented in many public statements that have appeared in the press.

"As an instance," he said, "the annual report of the Iowa weather and crop service gave the value of this year's corn crop of 478,000,000 less than the value of last year's corn crop of 306,000,000 bushels This estimate was based upon both crops being marketed at the low prevailing price on December 1 of each year.

"Of course, we all know that Iowa's corn crop is not a cash crop, and it is not marketed any year at the price prevailing on December 1 On the contrary, four-fifths of the crop or more is marketed through livestock and dairy products and with cattle and hogs selling at 15 to 20 per cent higher prices than they were bringing last year, and with prospects of good prices continuing throughout the year, it is reasonable to estimate that this year's corn crop will net Iowa farmers between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 more than last year's crop."

Says Beets Have Permanent Place In Sugar Industry

MONTREAL, Jan. 19—(AP)—Although the future development of the world's sugar industry probably will center in sugar cane growing countries, the sugar beet, in the opinion of Dr. C. A Brown, chief of the United States department of agriculture's bureau of chemistry, will continue to be a strong competitor because of its value in crop rotation.

Speaking before the Society of Chemical Industry here last night, he pointed out that production costs of cane sugar were lower "because of the cheap labor of tropical countries and the much greater yield of sugar which the cane gives over the beet"

In Hawaiian and Java, he said, more than four tons of sugar can be produced to the acre, while Germany, which leads in the production of beet sugar, can barely raise two tons of sugar per acre

REFUSED A JOB, FIRES INTO TRAIN

Wisconsin Farm Hand Held For Wounding Passengers On Two Electrics.

Angry Because Failed Get Railway Place; Probe Other Shootings.

RACINE, Wis., Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Because he had been refused a job, James Rogan, a farm hand, took his rifle and fired into two North Shore electric trains, running between Chicago and Milwaukee at a lonely spot three miles north of here last night, he admitted to authorities today.

Two passengers were wounded, one of them M. J. Shifris, Chicago, in the back of the head. Mrs. William Edmunds of Racine, was grazed in the forehead. Passengers on both trains were panic stricken when the bullets showered them with shattered glass. Mr. Shifris was taken to a hospital here. Mrs. Edmunds proceeded to Milwaukee after she had been struck.

Sheriff Martin Herzog arrested Rogan a few hours after Shifris was wounded in the second attack. He was questioned for an hour before he admitted the shooting, Herzog said.

The authorities also plan to question him regarding the burning of a barn on the Cassie Jones farm nearby an hour before the first shooting. He admitted he was near the barn and saw it burning. He also will be interrogated in connection with the killings some months ago, of Madeline Latimer and her fiance, James Sears, near Kenosha, ten miles from here, and several shootings on suburban trains several years ago.

Rogan told the sheriff he had applied to the railroad for a job and had been refused.

"So I thought I'd fix them," the sheriff quoted him. "I didn't want to hurt any people; I just wanted to scare the road so they'd give me a job or quit operating."

Teacher Will Keep Agreement Though Costs Her $115,000

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 19.—(AP)—To live up to an agreement will cost Miss Mary K. Jacks, school teacher, approximately $115,000, but she says she will keep her word.

Miss Jacks, stepdaughter of the late Mrs. Mattie A. Jacks, whose will was lost several months ago, made an agreement with several of Mrs. Jacks cousins that she would share the estate equally with them whether the will was found or not.

Yesterday the will was received here by mail from an unidentified person who found it. Miss Jacks was the principal beneficiary, but in view of her decision administrators of the estate announced today they would disregard the document.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—A dark impenetrable fog, clinging to familiar land marks and blurring tall buildings, settled on New York and the harbor Monday, demoralizing both land and water traffic. Fifty liners and freighters, reaching Ambrose Lightship, dropped anchor and waited for the fog to lift. The liners Cristobal, Ascania, Flora, Fort Victoria and Andania were among them. Ferry boats ran on delayed schedules.

BERLIN — (AP) — Chancellor Luther failed to establish his cabinet Monday, owing to the attitude of the Bavarian peoples party, which opposes the selection of Dr. Erich Koch as minister of the interior. The Bavarian reactionaries are suspicious of Dr. Koch because of his attitude on the question of federalism vs. state right. He is the sturdy champion of strong federal authority vested in the central government.

HARRISBURGH, Pa.—(AP)—Two resolutions providing for action to bring about a settlement of the anthracite strike were introduced into the house of the Pennsylvania legislature last night. One proposes a commission to be appointed by President Coolidge and the other a commission of six state legislators and three other members to be appointed by Governor Pinchot to bring about settlement between the opposing mine factions. Both resolutions went over until today without action.

ETHYL GASOLINE NOT DANGEROUS

Fuel Containing Tetraethyl Lead Found Not Hazard to Public Health.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Commercial gasoline containing tetraethyl lead is not a hazard to the public health and there is no reason why its sale should be prohibited under proper regulation, Surgeon General Cumming of the public health service, informed today by a committee appointed to study the subject.

The investigation was ordered by the surgeon general last May as a result of the death of five workers at the Bayway, N. J. plant of the Standard Oil Co., New Jersey.

The report of the committee was based upon a study of 252 individuals exposed in various degrees to the exhaust fumes of the gas and who had handled and distributed tetraethyl lead gasoline.

No cases were discovered of lead poisoning or other disease resulting from the use of ethyl gasoline, the report said.

The investigation gave special attention to automobile drivers who were exposed to exhaust gases in a much higher degree than the average automobile owner. It was pointed out, however, that the health hazard in the manufacture and blending of tetraethyl lead is serious and must be the subject of precise regulation and care. The committee asked that provision be made for a continuing study of the problem.

LEAVENWORTH, Kas. — (AP). — Capt. ANNUAL REPORT TELEPHONE HEAD

Stockholders Hear Greater Surplus Than Ever Accumulated In 1925.

President Woods Says Expenditure $682,000 Involved in 1926 Program.

Although expenses of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co., increased in 1925 by a greater percentage than did the earnings, a greater surplus than ever before was accumulated during the year, the annual report of President Frank H. Woods for the directors to the stockholders meeting Tuesday afternoon shows. After meeting all requirements for operating expenses, dividends on stock and for depreciation reserve, the balance to surplus was $106,008. In 1924 the surplus was $87,136.

Earnings for the year increased 4.15 per cent over 1924 while expenses increased 4.96 per cent for the same period, the report declares. The relatively greater increase of expenses is attributed to greater maintenance requirements of plant.

The 1926 construction program of the company contemplates a gross expenditure of $682,000, the report indicates, a large part of which will be for replacements, for which the depreciations reserve will be charged $325,000. The remainder covers anticipated requirements for additional service and the addec cost of replacing facilities over the original cost at lower price levels.

The total physical property investment is now $10,064,757, having increased by $62,682 during the year. While there were additions to plant of $970,274 there were also reductions of $907,652. The principal reductions were sale of exchange property at Red Cloud and Hampton, and the most significant item of plant extension was the erection at Lincoln of a modern warehouse and garage building, which serves to centralize economically material warehousing, repair and distribution.

Earnings on Stock.

Stock earned average dividends of 7.04 per cent on $5,767,725 of holdings. The amount of outstanding stock decreased during the year by $1,137,800, the result of repurchase of $1,500,000 of special preferred stock and the resale of $299,000 of it and the sale of $63,100 of common stock to employes.

Outstanding bonds increased during the year by $500,000, a 5 per cent issue, raising the total amount of outstanding bonds to $2,000,000 and reducing the average interest rate on bonds to 5.45 per cent.

A testimonial to the personal qualifications of R. E. Mattison, general manager, who died in December, is included in the report:

"His personal qualifications as an executive and a builder of organization morale and public goodwill, accompanied by untiring energy and devotion, have contributed in exceedingly large measure to the company's present position of strength. His character and ability, which were so valuable to this company, served as an inspiration to an unusually wide acquaintance in the whole telephone field."

BERLIN.—(AP)—Invasion of the dignified Prussian State opera house in Berlin of an age old custom of German theater-goers of blowing whistles when they are dissatisfied with the performance has resulted in many protests against the habit. Most Germans carries numerous keys, hollow on one end, so they can use them as whistles when the offerings on the stage displease them. This custom was all right in the theaters, but when the opera was invaded the actors began writing letters to the papers.

Tennessean To Ask Coolidge Aid In Getting Legislation To Stop Sunday Newspapers And Trains

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Noah Webster Cooper, chairman of the Sabbath Crusade committee of the Tennessee synod of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, believes that the American people will gallop to hell if they do not stop Sabbath breaking."

Starting from his home at Nashville, where he is a lawyer and Sunday school teacher, he rounded out a tour of the country yesterday by foregathering here with Dr. H. L. Bowlby, of the Lord's Day alliance, and Duncan J. McMillan of the New York Sabbath committee.

He expects to go to Washington tomorrow and ask President Coolidge's co-operation in gettin glegislation to stop Sunday trains and newspapers.

"Everyone of our 20,000,000 Sunday newspapers is Satan's ambassador and a decoy to ruin America," he told his New York associates. "Everyone of our 2,500 Sunday trains is hurrying America toward the hell of God's wrath."

Mr. Cooper considers any Sunday business for profit as on a par with bootlegging.

"Churchmen who condone Sabbath breaking," he says, "are as wicked in God's sight as bootleggers, robbers, bank breakers, adulterers, drunkards and liars whom they condemn. Anybody who buys a Sunday paper is helping the devil to ruin America. God's word is my authority."

He declared that he had sought co-operation of railroad presidents by telegraphing them, bt got only one favorable letter in reply, from the president of the Erie railroad, who said he would like to abolish all Sunday trains because they lost money.

Four men were victims of the impounding order, two not to use their autos for sixty days and the others for thirty days.

One of her entrants tied for special bass, another took second place in the contest for the best young birds in the show, and the third was adjudged the second best bird in the Kansas City club, of which Mrs. Kelley is a member. The other was highly recommended for the team.

Omaha Farmer Gains 16 Pounds Taking Karnak

"Why, This Medicine Just Went Through Troubles That Kept Me In Misery For Ten Years Like They Wasn't There," Says Halboth.

"Why, Karnak just 'went through' my troubles like they wasn't there," says Fred Halboth, prominent retired farmer, 2869 Saratoga St., Omaha, Neb.

"I tell you this medicine has rid me of ten years suffering from stomach trouble and rheumatism and has actually built me up 16 pounds in weight besides.

"For years I had been all 'stowed up' with rheumatism, stomach trouble, indigestion, gas, biliousness and nervousness. I just felt no account at all. All the joints in my body seemed as stiff and rusty as an old thresher that hadn't been used in years. In my legs especially it seemed like my muscles were tied in knots.

"My appetite was next to nothing at all, and what little I ate caused me hours of suffering from gas, headaches and weak spells. I'd wake up mornings as tired as when I went to bed. I spent sums of money, but it was only when I got Karnak that I found relief.

"Well sir, this Karnak got right down to the roots of my troubles and now I'm a well and happy man. Why, I can kick as high as my shoulders now, and I could run a foot race with anyone in town. And eat, I eat as I please, and plenty of it, and I never have a bit of trouble afterward. I just feel strong, healthy and happy all the time, and believe me, anybody in a condition like I was will sure be doing themselves an injustice unless they try Karnak."

Karnak is sold in Lincoln exclusively by the Harley Drug Co.; in Havelock by the Baker Drug store and by the leading druggists in every town.—Advertisement.

The Karnak man is in Lincoln now and may be seen at Harley Drug store between the hours of 12 noon and 5:30 p. m. daily where he is meeting the public, answering questions and explaining the merits forming.—Advertisement.

THORPE ASSAILS CRAZE FOR LAWS

Speaker at Chamber Dinner Says Business Legislation Adds to Complication.

Fears Understanding Of Business May Not Keep Pace With Growth.

"Our national well-being depends upon a wider understanding of business," declared Merle Thorpe, editor of the Nation's Business, speaking Monday evening at the annual meeting of the Lincoln chamber of commerce.

The attendance at the dinner was the largest known at any like gathering at the chamber, the large dining room being filled to capacity. Noticeable in the gathering were many from different parts of the state, including editors, bankers, business men and leading agriculturalists.

President Verne Hedge presided and presented John D. Bushnell who introduced Mr. Thorpe. The Chamber of Commerce glee club sang.

"The great danger in the United States is that popular understanding of business will not keep pace with the more and more intricate and complex phases of present-day industry" the speaker said.

Thorpe scored the "there-ought-to-be-a-law" craze and declared that the laws enacted only added to the complexity of the situation.

"We are too apt to regard Washington as made up of supermen with power to perform any economic miracle by passing a law," he said.

Washington a Cross-Section.

"As a matter of fact it is just a good cross-section of American citizenry, representative government, we call it. When we think the price of sugar is too high, we ask Washington to pass a law to lower the price. When we think the price of wheat too low, we ask Washington to pass a law that will raise the price. In one and the same petition we ask Washington to lower freight rates and raise the wages of railroad workers.

"Sometime, in our lives, we have all, most likely, been very active members of the great American choral society that has for its favorite number the popular anthem "There Ought to Be a Law.

"Nor are business men immune to this popular diversion. One business man recently suggested that there ought to be a law limiting the number of styles of shoes that could be made in a given year.

"In 1924 some 22,000 bills restricting, limiting and binding business and industrial action were introduced in our various legislative bodies.

Ought to Change Phrase.

"Our industrial processes, growing more intricate daily, breed misunderstandings — and oftentimes bad legislation. It is high time for us to discard the phrase 'there ought be fewer laws.'"

Thorpe told of several instances, showing how a single piece of bad legislation could affect an entire industry, even though the matter were apparently trivial, and entail the loss of millions of dollars. One example was when the lumbermen attempted to establish a standard inch board, they found it affected the hardware industry, building codes of thirty-two states, railroad, shipping and trade territory.

"Ninety per cent of the white house calendar today is made up of items affecting your business and mine," he declared.

"Our government is the greatest piece of mechanism ever conceived to protect political liberties," he said, "but its very checks and balances prevent it from operating a business economically and efficiently. Everybody knows that a referendum for hiring or firing the office boy would be fatal to a business."

While business may have faults, Thorpe asked the chamber members to remember that "our industrial system has produced three times more material wealth in its short life than the whole world had been able to produce up to 1776."

STILL OPPOSITION TO TAX MEASURE

Fight In Senate Against Some Provisions Certain Despite Compromise.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—A fight against some provisions of the tax reduction bill, ordered unanimously reported to the senate by its finance committee, appears certain, despite the compromise agreement between republicans and democrats.

The provisions for repeal of the inheritance tax and the publicity of income tax returns are almost certain to be made the basis of the contest by some western senators of both parties.

The compromise, however, has apparently assured overwhelming support for the bill and its enactment in time to become effective by March 15 seems assured.

Secretary Mellon withheld definite approval of the bill Monday pending a study of experts to determine the full extent of the reduction it will provide. He had warned the finance committee to hold the total of reduction to the $330,000,000 limit approved by the house, but Chairman Smoot of the senate committee estimated yesterday the bill probably would provide for at least $360,000,000 in reduction.

Aid Promised to Put Stop to Grain Price Manipulation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Extension of the methods for prevention of grain market price manipulation was promised Secretary Jardine Monday by a delegation of representatives of the grain markets at Chicago, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Duluth, Milwaukee and St. Louis.

Today

See America.
It Is Worth Seeing, Ocean to Ocean, North to South.

By Arthur Brisbane.

On the Santa Fe west of Albuquerque. If any friend asks how California is getting along, mention the fact that this limited train to Los Angeles is running in four sections as long as they can be made safely.

And farther north, other long trains with heavy loads are going west to San Francisco, Seattle, the whole coast.

Of 40 or 50 passenger cars on these four Santa Fe sections, half, probably, will return empty. People go to California to stay.

President Storey of the Santa Fe, a real railroad man, is rapidly doing away with the "permanent wave" that he found in the Santa Fe tracks, straightening curves that check speed. Before long he will cut off a day between New York and the coast, regardless of deals with other roads, thus adding to the prosperity of California and the Santa Fe.

As it is, only a dull mind could call long a journey that reveals the wonder glory, untouched wealth and unimaginable future of this noble country.

Who has not crossed this continent, or seen the Pacific ocean, the vast empire growing up along that western coast, might as well have spent his life in a backyard in Brooklyn. He knows his country as little as does a prairie dog perched on the edge of its hole, watching for coyotes.

Many are the sights on the swift journey from Atlantic to Pacific. The old wonder, Niagara, if you go by the New York Central; by Pennsylvania, the new wonder, with its roaring furnaces, and then Chicago, the real American city on the Great Lakes, destined to be the landing place of the world's aerial fleets.

Next Kansas City, where citizens tell the world they will pass Chicago and then "go after New York."

Then the level lands of Kansas, with thousands of straw mountains wasted because it does not pay to bale and ship the straw to a big city, where it would sell for $30 a ton.

Kansas farmers work through the year to feed their brother Americans, and do it on ice water or coffee. Kansas is not a bootleg state and is proud of it.

If you go by the Union Pacific you pass Great Salt lake and climb over the country's backbone. The Alps compared to the Rocky mountains are small town vaudeville compared with grand opera.

On the Santa Fe you stop to see the Grand canyon and, if wise, you don't try to describe it. Theodore Roosevelt tried, and failed, with all his big words. Ring Lardner, wiser, looked at the hole a mile deep, said, "Nature evidently planned that to hold old razor blades," and passed on.

The train now passes through New Mexico, land of majestic dignity and peace, detestined to wait many centuries for the coming of a race worthy of such grandeour. What are we, barely out of the stone age, that we should live close to the sky in endless sunshine.

"You never tire traveling through this country," says the oldest conductor on the Santa Fe, whose gold star and stripes will soon vanish from his coat sleeve, Seventy-six years old, he thinks it is time to quit "railroading," and retires next June. Two of his fingers are stiff, you notice, as he shakes hands. He knew what it was to travel in winter on top of wooden freight cars almost half a century ago, and turn a frozen wheel when the whistle blew.

This good worker quits because he wants to enjoy his last 25 years. His body is straight, his eye as clear as that of an eagle. With money saved in his 76 years of faithful work and the pension that the railroad gives him, he will live modestly and happily in California.

He says: "California is for everybody that is old, and especially the place for those lucky enough to get there when young. I have gone, and left, hundred of times, like walking into heaven and out again. Now I am going to stay."

The railroad brotherhood, which includes tens of thousands of such workers, ask a share of increasing railroad prosperity in better pay. Would it be unreasonable to pay such a man enough to let him retire a little earlier. The pay of railroad men is better than it ever was, but why not make it better, in the future than it is today? Prosperity, the increasing fortunes of the prosperous, depend on what the average man spends.

There are four times as many people in China as there are in the United States, but it wouldn't pay to run the Santa Fe railroad in China. Fair wages have made the United States possible. Better wages will make greater things possible.

The Wichita Daily Eagle, a good paper published by the Murdocks, rejoices in the formation of a Kansas group "to fight the evolution theory." It tells you also that W. K. Hale, king of the Osage Hills, "will probably not be convicted of murdering Osage Indians for their life insurance and other belongings. Not enough evidence." Iso, why should an Indian have so much money from oil, and who doubts that a dead Indian is better than a live one, especially when insured for $25,000.

All along the track you see oil wells and read oil news about "oil sand 700 to 2,000 feet deep promising 12,000 barrels a day, railroad and pipe lines building." It's a great country, you ought to see it—east, west, north, south.

The news of the day comes in as you cross the continent. The Kansas City Journal tells of mothers and fathers of high school boys trying to keep them from getting drunk on bootleg liquor at parties and forcing the liquor on high school girls.

E. M. Pepperday's Albuquerque Journal tells how Ermilio Chaves, white man, presumably Mexican, says he killed Hiichi Yamata, because he didn't want him to marry his youngest sister. The Japanese had married his oldest sister. She died. One white sister married to a Japanese was enough, he thought. A jury will tell what it thinks about that.

All In Readiness For International Broadcasting Test

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP)—After negotiating for co-operation of land radio stations, ships at sea and finally even rum runners, plans for the international radio broadcasting tests next week seemed complete last night with announcement of the London program.

The London program announced will include a baritone singer and cornet solos.

Both will be accompanied by radio quartets. Code signals from the rum runners are now seen as the only likely flaw in the testing conditions, the radio week committee said. Efforts are being made, however, to reach operators and ask them not to flash code messages during the hours of the test.

CHICAGO—(I. N. S.)—A scathing attack upon the United States department of commerce for its "abuse of its discretionary powers" in regulation of radio was voiced here today by E. L. McDonald, president of the Zenith Radio corporation, against which the district attorneys' office was preparing to ask, probably today, an injunction to restrain it from continuing to broadcast from its station WJAZ on a wave length not assigned to it.

FAIR MANAGERS TO BAN GAMBLING

Pass Resolution Following Debate On Question Of Games of Chance.

Judges Find For Negative Team; Hear Spillman On Enforcement.

All gambling—devices or games of chance would be barred from fairs in this state, if recommendations contained in a resolution which the Nebraska Association of Fair Managers passed unanimously Monday evening are carried out.

A debate on "Resolved: That it pays financially to allow gambling devices to operate on county fair grounds" preceded action on the resolution. The negative side won the debate, by a 2 to 1 decision.

Attorney General O. S. Spillman was chief speaker at the Monday evening session of the fair managers convention. His subject was "Law Enforcement."

"Dean Pound is correct in asserting that 'enforcement is the life of the law,'" Spillman said. "One of the first obstacles to effective law enforcement is that we have no proper recording and publication of complete statistics with respect to crime."

He urged support of the measure proposed at the last legislature for the tabulation of such information in the state and asked the development of sentiment favoring it.

He complimented the Nebraska Supreme court as being one of the leaders in "moving away from the decision of cases on technicalities, but upon its merits."

He discussed criminal procedure and asserted that much of the criticism was well founded.

"There has been a tendency from the beginning of our government to worship the technicalities in the trial of a criminal case," he declared, and cited instances in which he believed the procedure could be changed to advantage.

Debate on Gambling.

Homer McKelvie, Fairfield; R. S. Cowen, Albion; and C. C. Congleton, Kearney, composed the affirmative team, and John Quig, O'Neil; A. B. Woods, Gering; and A. H. Miller, Kennard, the negative.

The affirmative team argued that it was not the function of a fair board to attempt to change the evil inclinations of mankind, and drew a distinction between various grades of gambling, as "honest" or "dishonest." That it paid financially was upheld especially by McKelvie, who had sent out a questionnaire on the subject. Such gambling devices as are permitted on fair grounds have a distinct educational value, it was asserted, in that they teach the very young the folly of games of chance. The concession money paid by the gamblers constitutes a large source of income, they said.

The negative team, however, cited instances of prosperous fair associations which permitted gambling of no kind and declared that money received in the way of concession charges was lost at the gate. As an educational factor it was practically nil, they said, and the same lesson could be learned with less expense and trouble than at the fair grounds. "And," said Senator Miller, "as for an honest gambling device, there is no such thing."

The question was stated upon the purely financial side of the issue, but the moral issue received as much attention from each side.

BILLS PROPOSED FOR COAL RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press)—While members of both houses of congress continued yesterday to advance proposals for the relief of the coal situation, Secretary Hoover made the laconic announcement that neither he or the commerce department had prepared or recommended any coal legislation.

Meanwhile the strike in the anthracite fields again was brought to the attention of the white house, Senator Oddie, republican, Nevada, discussing with President Coolidge his bill to create a bureau of coal economics in the commerce department.

The measure, designed to prevent coal strikes is being studied by Mr. Hoover and the president was reported as being non-committal, pending a report from the secretary.

In the house, despite a somewhat insistent demand by a number of the members for some form no apparent move by the committee of coal relief legislation, there was no apparent move by the commerce committee, which has jurisdiction in such matters, to call hearings on any of the numerous bills that have been introduced.

President Coolidge has made clear that he is watching with interest the special session of the Pennsylvania legislature in the hope that it may take some action which will end the anthracite suspension, but that he felt he was powerless to take a hand. Some members of the house commerce committee also are giving close attention to the Pennsylvania situation.

INTRODUCES NEW AIRCRAFT BILL

Morin Favors Carrying Out Recommendations President's Air Board.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Preparatory to the opening by the house military committee today of a new inquiry into the aircraft situation, Chairman Morin Monday introduced a bill designed to carry out recommendations of the president's air board.

The measure, which will be before the committee by the time Secretary Davis of the war department, appears Wednesday to testify, deals principally with the recommendations as they affect the army air service.

It provides for an additional assistant secretary in a department at a salary of $7,500 a year to handle aviation matters.

The board's proposal that the one brigadier generalship allotted to the air service be increased by two is provided for, together with its recommendation for purchase of certain aircraft materials without competitive bidding.

CHICAGO—(AP)— Organizations representing five million organized women, including the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will participate in the annual Women's World's fair to be held here April 17 to April 24 in the American Exposition palace, it was announced last night.

STRICTER LAWS FOR CRIMINALS

President Of County Attorneys Makes Several Recommendations.

Says That Indeterminate Sentence Statute Should Be Repealed.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Perfection of a carefully organized crime prevention program was urged here today by President Bert M. Hardenbrook of Ord, in his annual address before the County Attorneys association of Nebraska.

The program would have for its objective the creation of reverance for law by juveniles and adults, correction of obsolete and defective laws and procedure, and the elimination of known crime contributaries Mr. Hardenbrook, county attorney of Valley county, advised.

Pointing out that some states have crime commissions which are making investigations and devising plans for betterment, the association president stressed the need for a movement of this kind in Nebraska.

As to the causes of crime, he said that no one agency is entirely to blame.

"There is no question but what uncertainty of adequate punishment, court delays, our system of pardons and paroles, advantages given the accused in the criminal procedure, and many other shortcomings have in a large measure contributed to this delinquency," the speaker declared. "It is also a fact that the home has abdicated, is failing to function as such, and has become a mere filling station and parking place for the family when there is no place else to go."

Failure to teach the dignity of honest labor, truthfulness and other kindred virtues as taught by the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule is also a contributary cause to the increase in crime, he asserted.

Modern Life Complex.

"There is," he continued, "a growing complexity of modern social life and there are now many ways and opportunities for committing crime and wrong doing which did not exist in former days.

"Some contend that the World war is in a large measure responsible for the conditions today but, while it probably has contributed, a careful study reveals that there was a steady increase in crime for years before the war."

He asked the association to make certain recommendations, "not a cure-all, but with a view that conditions may be bettered." The recommendations follow in part:

Complete criminal statistics should be collected, preserved and made available to the public.

Some practical provision so that offenders confined in the jails could be put regularly to work.

An adequate law as to revolver toting which is responsible for a large percentage of our violent crimes.

An adequate provision with which to deal with the habitual criminal.

Abolish paroles except in rare cases and then only after a judicial investigation.

Repeal of the indeterminate sentence law which is wrong in principle.

Permit trial judges to give oral instructions and to comment on the evidence as in federal court.

Separate trials should be abolished except in rare instances.

The state should be permitted to show prior convictions at the trial.

Presumption of innocence which is merely a court made rule should be abolished. After arrest and indictment why presume him guilty. He must and should be proven guilty "beyond a reasonable doubt."

The granting of a stay of execution of sentence on bond where defendant after having been found guilty is given his liberty on appeal should be restricted. South Dakota has such a law.

Fire Threatens Syracuse Block But Is Overcome

(Special to The Star.)

SYRACUSE, Neb., Jan. 19.—Fire originating on the second floor of the A. H. Lorenz merchandise store in the Haas block at six o'clock Sunday evening for a time threatened the destruction of the entire building but prompt work on the part of the fire department checked the blaze before it spread to other parts of the building.

The fire originated in a closet adjoining the room occupied by a young man and soon burned into the storage room on that floor.

The telephone exchange occupied the front rooms of this floor and for a time was seriously in danger. Smoke filled the exchange rooms and Miss Eleanor Ostrander who was on duty at the switchboard stuck to her post until forcibly taken from the room.

Much of the stock of the A. H. Lorenz store was damaged by water which poured through the ceiling into the lower rooms in torrents.

Water also did considerable damage to the telephone exchange which had been recently refitted. It is operated by the Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Absence of wind and warm temperature materially assisted the department in conquering the blaze which had a good start when discovered. Chemicals were used at first but the fire had too good a start and two streams of water were put into service to check it.

BOTH CANDIDATES FROM RICHARDSON

Morehead and Marsh Held Same Office In Home County.

(Special to The Star)

FALLS CITY, Neb., Jan. 19.—George W. Marsh or John H. Morehead?

For the first time in years Richardson county citizens in general and Falls citizens in particular are finding some political fodder for gossip as a result of State Auditor Marsh's candidacy for congressman from the First district, forcing them to choose between two men who have a claim upon their votes through their long residence in the county and Falls City. Morehead, now serving his second term in congress, has not announced his intention to run again, but many local political observers are inclined to believe he will seek a third term.

Marsh lived in Richardson county about 40 years before moving to Lincoln. Morehead has also been a resident of the county for that length of time.

Singularly, each stepped up in politics from the same county office, one succeeding the other. Marsh, after serving as county clerk from 1889 to 1891, was county treasurer from 1892 to 1896 and was succeded by Morehead, who held that office from 1896 to 1900.

4 out of 5

is grim pyorrhea's count

DENTAL STATISTICS tell this grim story: four people out of every five are destined, through neglect, to contract pyorrhea after they pass the age of forty. Thousands younger also suffer.

Pyorrhea is the dread disease of the gums which is responsible often for loss of teeth, rheumatism, neuritis and other dangerous disorders.

It starts with tender bleeding gums. Pockets form below the teeth and poisons spread relentlessly through the body. If you have pyorrhea or any of its symptoms see your dentist at once and start brushing your teeth with Forhan's for the Gums.

To safeguard yourself against pyorrhea make Forhan's your regular dentifrice. It is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., and contains his pyorrhea liquid which has been used by dentists the last 15 years in the treatment of pyorrhea. If used regularly and used in time it will prevent pyorrhea or check its course. Don't give this insidious disease a chance to start. Start using Forhan's this very day. All druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Sore throats need this Double-Treatment

YOUR sore, aching throat probably needs the soothing, healing vapors that arise from Vicks VapoRub when it is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime. And Vicks acts two ways at once:

(1) It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled right to the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing;

(2) At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the pain and soreness and thus helps the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion.

Four Boys From Raymond Admit Petty Thievery

Four farmer boys from Raymond and a crowd of interested onlookers trooped up to the court house Monday afternoon for a talk with Mrs W. M. Morning, juvenile probation officer, concerning certain thieveries in Raymond during the past six months.

The result was that the four boys agreed to pay $50 out of their own money to John J. Brey, owner of a Raymond grocery, and were placed on parole to their parents.

One of the youths who are 14 to 17 years old, admitted he had been in the store six times. Cigarettes, candy, small change and other articles were taken. One of the boys stood as an outer guard on Sunday afternoons when the little band got together for their expeditions, while the other three raised a back window and went inside. The amount of cigarettes, candy and money which the youths had at times finally brought suspicion and arrest by Deputy Sheriff Cecil Ward.

Man Accused Of Annoying Women Now In Custody

A man giving the name of Ben Schwind, 23, laborer, and who is said to have admitted to Captain Anderson that he had annoyed several women on different occasions recently, was arrested Tuesday morning and is being held at the city jail.

Schwind admitted the annoyance of Mrs. Raymond Dietsch the night of January 9 near Eighteenth and N streets, but denied that he had thrown her to the sidewalk, according to Captain Anderson.

The man is an ordinary "floater," Captain Anderson said, and charges of vagrancy probably will be filed against him.

American Opera in Lincoln.

"The Legend of the Piper," who drove the rats out of the village and on the refusal to compensate him for his work charmed the children from their homes and parents is always an interesting tale. Eleanor Everest Freer has set this old legend to very charming music. The premier performance in Chicago was enthusiastically received and critics pronounced it of unusual merit. This and a companion piece, "The Court Jester," also a one act opera, will be given this evening at the Temple theater.

FRANKFORT, Ky.—(AP)—Representative G. C. "Satan in Sables" with is the story of a reckless Russian prince who walked the primrose path to the merry tune of aching hearts.

But one day a dancing bit of a girl flits across his pathway—and the bright lights lose their glamour.
How she lured him—baffled him—seemed always just beyond his reach—and then—came back into his life like a ray of sunshine
—all this is powerfully pictured in the new WARNER picture—"Satan in Sables."

HERBERT SCHMIDT IS HEARD IN RECITAL.

Herbert Schmidt, one of Lincoln's foremost pianists and a member of the faculty of the University School of Music, was heard in the second of his series of recitals to be presented this season, Monday evening at the Temple theater. Mr. Schmidt's musicianship is always a revelation to his hearers. His skillful technique, his art and color, were clear cut, and formally beautiful. The program presented by Mr. Schmidt was unusually interesting, and each number was portrayed with an individualness that made it most attractive. Several encores were given, including after the Liszt Variations on a Theme by Bach," a Liszt sonata. Schumann's "Fruhlingsnacht" was given following the Brahms group.

MR. AND MRS COX IN MUSICAL PROGRAM.

On of the most pleasing musicals of the season was presented before the members of the Lincoln Woman's club Monday afternoon at the Temple theater, by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cox of Omaha. Mr. Cox, who is a violinist, and his wife, who is his accompanist, appeared before the club a year ago, and their return to Lincoln this season was by request of the club members, who also asked for certain numbers to be given on the program.

Mr. Cox not only plays technically well, but has a vivid sense of interpretation emotionally and the combination is all that could be desired. His program was of unusual beauty, some of the numbers were new to the audience, but many of them were old favorites. It was not a lecture recital as had been announced, although Mr. Cox gave brief explanations before some of his numbers. One of the lovely numbers was "Spanish Cazonetta," which was particularly interesting because it had been composed by an Iowa man and dedicated to Mr. Cox.

The encores given by Mr. Cox were "G. Major Minuet," Beethoven; "Schubert Serenade," the Dvorak-Kreisler Slavonic Fantasy, "Song of India," "Souvenir," Drdla," "Serenade," Toselli.

The program was as follows:
Pugnani (1731-1798)—Kreisler.
Praelyudium and Allegro.
Couperin (1668-1733—Kreisler.
Chanson Louis XIII and Pavane.
Gossec (1734-1829)—Kreisler.

Ganna Walska to Try Once More for Elusive Fame of Opera Stage

PARIS— Undismayed by what critics called but fair success when she sang the leading role of "Madame Butterfly" in the Puccini opera in Nice, a year ago, Ganna Walska, wife of Harold F. McCormick, is planning to attempt the same role in Paris some time in the spring.

Possessor of the harvester millions, McCormick has presented his wife with the Theatre des Champs Elysees, where she will probably make another bid for fame as a prima donna. Her quest for fame started many seasons ago but her temperament and marriage to McCormick drew her more publicity than her operatic achievements.

Walska is so determined to make a success of this venture that she has denied herself to friends for months, and clad in a Japanese kimona has studied oriental dramatic art and technique under the direction of Michio Itow, a Japanese dancer. She has learned to emote in the proper Japanese fashion and the tragic death of Butterfly has been practised, oh, many, many times, in the privacy of her roof top studio. Of course vocal exercises have been indulged in daily.

Educational Institution.

The Nebraska state fair is primarily an educational institution, and it must be conducted with that purpose in mind, Secretary Jackson declared in his report. Especially should the state board of agriculture realize its responsibility to the boys and girls of the state. Valuable work is being done through the many boys and girls club activities, the demonstrations and graphic exhibits, he declared.

But every fair, even if assisted by an appropriation from the state, must be dependent on public patronage for its success. If the public patronage is to be secured and held, the fair as a whole must be made sufficiently interesting to attract the public. This is a fast living age, Secretary Jackson declared, and people in general are not satisfied unless the best and latest in all exhibits is to be seen. It is not enough to see prize winners. People are anxious to know the reason why they are winners. For this reason Secretary Jackson urged every effort be made to let the people know when and where the judging of various exhibits will take place. He suggested that the judges be present at all times and be instructed to answer all questions that may be asked, if possible.

The Dairy Industry.

Then reviewing the various departments of the exhibits, Secretary Jackson told of the progress made in 1925 and called attention to the enormous agricultural resources of the state in connection with these exhibits. Speaking of the dairy industry he declared that Nebraska cows produce 2,111,440,000 pounds of milk each year. The consumption of the state is 155,564,640 pounds. This leaves a surplus for marketing outside the state of 1,855,875,000 pounds of milk each year.

"It is no wonder that Nebraska citizens have interested capital to such an extent that thousands of dollars are being invested in the improvement of the dairy industry in the state," he declared. "I am thoroughly convinced that what we need in this state is not more cows but better cows and better business methods applied. If the Nebraska Dairy Improvement association does nothing more than to put the dairy interests of Nebraska on a business foundation it has been worth while and should be encouraged."

"Farming in general when studied and analyzed will be found to be, under present conditions, a highly competitive industry, and the products of the farm are subject to the same economic laws as the products of the factory. Hence operation in a business way and in the light of national and even world wide competition."

"Today more than ever before the farmer and stock grower is at the mercy of organized consumers and is caught coming and going. The farmer must not only study his business, but he must inform himself on matters of world productions, distribution and consumption, and the laws and tariff that govern if he is to achieve success.

Speaking of the cattle exhibit at last year's fair, Secretary Jackson pointed out that of the 10,762 won in prizes, $7,214 was awarded to breeders from outside the state. This does not include the calf clubs. "A great deal of credit is due the cattle breeders for the improvement of cattle standards in the state through their interest and help in promoting the Boys and Girls calf clubs," he said.

Each year brings new growth in the swine exhibits both in numbers and in quality. "There was a time when it was thought that a successful breeder must have his herd headed by an Ohio or Illinois bred sire, but today we find the breeders from those states coming to Nebraska for heads for their herds."

The crop of marketable hogs in Nebraska annually is 5,735,000 head. They are marketed at an average weight of 256 pounds each. That means that approximately 1,433,750,000 pounds of pork are produced in Nebraska annually and marketed. The state's consumption of pork is approximately 101,317,016 pounds annually. This leaves a surplus of 1,332,632,984 pounds or 69,574 carloads for the outside markets, Secretary Jackson pointed out.

The poultry industry is another of the state's largest sources of wealth. Secretary Jackson declared that Nebraska ranks fourth in the production of eggs and poultry. The value of the eggs alone exceeds the gold production of any state.

Next Secretary Jackson turned his attention to the sugar and sugar beet industry. In 1924, he said, the five factories paid $4,000,979 to the farmers of the state for their sugar beets. These beets produced two hundred and ten million pounds of sugar. The total value of the 1924 crop of sugar was $16,800,000, he declared.

The 1925 wheat crop of Nebraska amounted to 34,150,000 bushels. Manufactured food products produced in Nebraska have an annual value of approximately $600,000,000. Nebraska stands third in corn production.

Gray Hair Is Easily Darkened

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy.

Mrs. H. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., following statement.

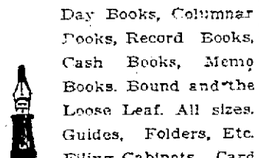

"Anyone can darken their gray or youngish with this simple remedy, which faded hair, and look twenty years they can mix at home. To half a pint of water and add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at a little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger.—Advertisement.

$71,000 IN EIGHT YEARS.

The Omaha World-Herald publishes the story of a Cozad, Neb., farmer, living three miles north and two west of that community, who has made $71,000 in eight years. He made it farming. In 1917 this man, whose name is withheld, had assets of $7,500. Today he is worth $78,560.

The story, we imagine, might be made to fit many communities in this state.

There was nothing spectacular in the methods employed by this Cozad farmer. In the fall of 1917 his 80-acre farm between Cozad and Gothenburg was sold for $8,000. He owed $3,000 on it. He had about $2,000 of personal property and with this money he purchased a half of his present 160-acre farm. This latter tract had never been considered productive. But it was included in the irrigation project and the farmer thought he saw possibilities. He plowed every foot of it as deep as possible and then sowed alfalfa and corn. Before his corn needed moisture he irrigated it, and then cultivated it several times. He was most careful in his selection of seed. There has not been a year since he owned the farm that he has not raised 60 bushels of corn to the acre, and every foot of ground was made to produce.

He raised his own chickens and kept his own cows. He had a drove of hogs to provide his meat and to market. Practically all work was performed without extra assistance.

Today the World-Herald states that this Cozad farmer has $10,000 in the bank, $27,000 in farm mortgages and is looking for another $10,000 farm mortgage to buy. He has four hundred tons of alfalfa to sell at not less than $12 a ton. He has a carload of fat cattle in the feed lot, 50 head of hogs and 4,000 bushels of corn in the crib. He has $78,500 of gilt-edge assets where eight years ago he was worth $7,500.

Of course it is an unusual case.

Very few farmers in Nebraska have been able to maintain an annual net income of nearly $10,000 a year throughout the period of high and low prices for agricultural produce. But for that matter how many business men in the cities and towns of this state, and other states, with an equal amount of capital invested, have been able to show as much for the last eight years of effort as this Cozad farmer? He was farming land where the fickleness of climatic conditions had been very largely eliminated because he was able to water it artificially. Give him sunshine and a sufficiency of it to mature his crops and his production problems were solved. He still had to wrestle with the problem of raising crops on land which was expensive to farm. And he still had to meet the same problem which has been stumping thousands of other farmers—the low price of agricultural produce.

After all, whether it be the business of farming, or retailing, or wholesaling or manufacturing or banking—it is the man who counts. The farmer of today must be a business man in the same sense of the word that the retailer and the wholesaler are business men. If the merchant or the jobber takes it for granted that their task is complete when the goods are on their shelves, they will shortly find themselves in trouble. The farmer who thinks his job is finished when his crops are planted and harvested is in the same boat.

Those farmers who understand this—who are watching every cent of income and every penny of outlay—are making money and big money. The jobbers and the retailers and the manufacturers and the bankers who are giving careful attention to every item of their business are succeeding. This Cozad farmer fared most generously because he did not leave the disposition of his crops entirely to chance markets. The same amount of intelligent, careful effort applied by other farmers has produced results.

The man who would make $71,500 in eight years must be worthy of the stake.

EACH NEEDS THE OTHER.

Burlington railroad officials made a very forceful presentation of the part their road has played in the development of Nebraska during the last 55 years, in their advertisement published in The Star last Sunday. The story of the close relation that has existed and now exists between Nebraska and the Burlington was very impressively told. It emphasizes the fact that each is mutually dependent on the other in material factors that contribute to the general welfare.

Without disparaging the valuable service that other transportation companies have rendered in the building up of Nebraska, the Burlington is undoubtedly entitled to the position of leadership in this regard. It was the first to realize the possibilities of this region and begin the building up of a railroad system designed to meet the peculiar needs of the young state. True, the Union Pacific main line had been laid some years before, but its main purpose was to supply a transcontinental connection. The older road contented itself for a time with its through business, while the Burlington was the first to reach Lincoln, the new capital, and extend itself into the virgin territory south of the Platte.

In three years, from 1870 to 1872, the line from Nebraska City to Lincoln and thence west to Harvard, Hastings and Kearney was laid, a distance of 200 miles or more. For a young company possessing only limited financial resources, and with the physical equipment available in those days, that was a remarkable record. But the Burlington did not stop there. It began building local extensions north, south, east and west. As time went on, railroad projects in the South Platte territory which other companied had built were acquired by the "Q". Before many years, there was a network of lines affording communication between the various communities of southern Nebraska and direct connection with the outside world.

This building and expansion program was carried on in the face of crop failures, grasshopper seasons, a national business depression, and other adversities. Later, the main line to the northwest, linking up with the Great Northern at Billings, Mont., and thus opening up a new route to the Pacific coast, was constructed. Branches were also extended into north central Nebraska, and some twenty years ago the Burlington constructed its line to Sioux City.

Today, Lincoln is situated at the hub of a great wheel made up of Burlington lines radiating in every direction, reaching three-fourths of Nebraska. Some of these lines are great arterial trunks that extend across the country, carrying enormous tonnages of freight and a huge volume of passenger traffic. About 29 per cent of the whole mileage of the system is within the Cornhusker state, and the Burlington gets 34 per cent of its entire net revenue from Nebraska.

The people of this commonwealth feel gratified that the Burlington is one of the most prosperous carriers in all the territory west of the Mississippi river. The reason for its prosperity lies largely in the fact that it serves the flourishing state of Nebraska. And Nebraska, on the other hand, owes its advancement in a considerable measure to the efficient transportation service which the Burlington and other railroads furnish.

THE INHERITANCE TAX AMENDMENT.

Action in the senate finance committee looking towards an agreement upon the new revenue bill is of prime interest to these central western and western states because the measure has been changed again to provide for total repeal of the federal inheritance tax. This action of the senate committee is a gross discrimination against the central west and every agricultural state in the union. It is manifestly in the interest of the wealthy industrial centers of the United States.

The bill was bad enough as it was originally passed by the house for it provided an 80 per cent refund to the different states of the taxes collected under the inheritance plan. That would have given New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and some of the other eastern states, where most of the wealth of the country is centered, a great advantage over some of the states in this section, which, nevertheless, helped to build those great fortunes. The senate committee has gone the house one better. It has approved the original plan of Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Mellon to vacate the field to the different states.

There are very few who would suggest Henry Ford's fortune was built in the state of Michigan. It is national in its character and should be so taxed. Simply because John D. Rockefeller happens to make New York state his residence, he has not confined his business activities to that one commonwealth. He has operated in every state of the union and the people of every section have contributed to building up the staggering wealth which he possesses. Why, then, should New York state regard it as its exclusive right to tax that fortune upon the death of its owner? Most of the men who have built great fortunes have not restricted their business to any one state.

If the principle of the inheritance tax is sound, and there has been little question raised as to that, then all the states of the union are entitled to share in these national fortunes. Western representatives in congress should resist the efforts of the east to grab the benefits for that section of the country.

THE VOLUNTEER FIREMAN.

Volunteer firemen from cities and towns all over Nebraska meet at Alliance today for their forty-fourth annual convention. Hundreds of them will be present at the meeting in the busy and enterprising Box Butte county seat, where doubtless they will be royally entertained, as they certainly deserve to be.

It is not merely for entertainment that these men make the journey to the northwest, however, and what is tendered them in that line will be merely "on the side." They go there for earnest work and instruction, that they may become more proficient in their service to their neighbors and fellow citizens. They will listen to talks by men of experience and will exchange ideas as to the best manner of rescuing lives and property from the red scourge which annually exacts toll of millions throughout the length and breadth of the land.

The volunteer fireman is deserving of the lasting gratitude of all the people for the self-sacrificing service he renders to his fellow man. Without hope of financial reward he is ready to answer at all times to the dread alarm, which in the smaller places, without adequate fire fighting facilities, may be of much greater portent than in the larger cities. He is about the only person who is always on duty. Day or night, warm or cold, he is always on the job, with never an excuse, never a complaint. The amount of property he has by his devotion and his courage saved for his neighbors will never be known and the number of people who owe their lives to him has never been computed.

The memory of the older volunteers goes back to the time when fire fighting equipment even in towns of respectable size, was pitifully meagre. Now, happily this condition has to a very great extent been remedied. Practically all places have water works and modern apparatus is to be found even in many villages. But intelligence, courage and resourcefulness are nevertheless required and these are never found lacking among the members of the volunteer fire departments.

These men deserve the best that can be offered them by the entertaining city and Alliance can be depended upon to see that they receive it.

A SUCCESSFUL ANNUAL MEETING.

There have been few speakers in Lincoln more thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated than Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, who spoke Monday evening at the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. Altogether it was a notable meeting. Invitations had been sent out to a large number of Nebraskans and an unusually large audience was present. Mr. Thorpe's address was a treat. The man who did not feel inspired and enlightened by his discussion of business and political problem is, indeed, a peculiar individual.

Government became somewhat less impersonal to those who heard Mr. Thorpe.

His audience came to realize, perhaps for the first time, to what heights of folly and absurdity this craze for legislation has been carrying this country. Mr. Thorpe mentioned the inumerable boards and commissions which have fastened themselves upon this country. And he made it plain that once there, it is nearly impossible to pry them loose. For the first time, perhaps, his Lincoln audience realized how interdependent and complicated modern business and industry have become. There was enough food for thought in his address to last for the rest of the year.

More Truth Than Poetry.

THE EASIEST THING IN THE WORLD.

The easiest thing in the world
Is hopelessly to growl;
When gusts of dust are whirled,
When wild winds madly howl,
When taxes are too high,
When prices are too dear,
When fair, lost chances lie
Behind along the year,
The easiest thing in the world
Is hopelessly to growl.

One needs no gifts to sneer
At those who get ahead;
The weakest man may fear,
The dullest sit in dread;
He needs no courage who
Insists that all is wrong;
It's always easy, too,
To croak a dismal song.

When others win where you
Have bumped against mischance
It isn't hard to view
Things with a tearful glance;
When what we have desired
Is gone and out of reach
No genius is required
For pettish, doeful speech

When ill winds madly screech
It's easy to be sad
And sit and think of each
Hard bruise that we have had;
No grumbling ever made
A dismal morning bright,
No sneer has ever swayed
A man from wrong to right;
The easiest thing in the world
Is hopelessly to growl.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

FREAK REDUCING DIETS.

No doubt you have all heard of the pineapple and lamb chop, the skim milk and baked potato, and the so-called Mayo (hard-boiled eggs, tomatoes and skim milk) reducing diets.

No doubt you have also heard the weird and absurd explanations given for their effectiveness—such as the pineapple juice digests the lamb chop and therefore the consumer doesn't digest it; and the potato and milk form a yeast compound which causes the reduction, etcetera.

Which is the true explanation of their reducing powers? The only reason any diet reduces is because it is lower in calories of energy food than the system needs, and the body's stored fat is called up to supply the deficit. For instance, I'm allowing those of you who are of average height and activities, 1200 calories daily of a mixed diet, and expect you to reduce around two pounds a week, for that number is probably 1000 calories less than you need to supply your internal and external activities. (One pound of any fat, human included, will furnish 4000 C's so one fourth pound daily of your own fat will be called on to furnish the 1000 C's you are not getting in food.)

Now let's analyze these freak diets and see how many calories they average. The skim milk and potato diet (you are supposed to have a glass of skim milk and an average size potato three times a day); a glass of skim milk is 80 calories, the average size potato is 100; 180 calories three times a day is but 540 calories. Even though you take a 180 C. meal six times a day you still would have less than I am allowing you. The pineapple and lamb chop; a slice of pineapple is 50 calories, an ordinary sized lamb chop without fat is from 100 to 150 calories, so this diet would average from 600 to 700 C. The so-called Mayo diet consists, as I heard of it, of a cup of clear coffee for breakfast, no calories; for lunch, two average sized tomatoes, 50 calories, two hard boiled eggs, 150 calories; two glasses of skim milk, 160 calories; total, 360 calories. The same for dinner. All this averages for the day around 720 calories. Now you see why these diets reduce.

I start you off on three days (our stomach shrinking period) on as low a number of calories as these diets give, so that your stomach can be satisfied with less than it has been having, but it is not advisable to stay on this low calorie diet for any length of time, for you will not be supplying the elements your system needs and ill health will result. That is the chief reason I don't want you to go on these low calorie freak diets.

Another reason is that to go on one of these diets is an indication of ignorance of the fundamentals of dietetics. Still another reason is that you make yourself conspicuous and cause inconveniences both to yourself and your hostess if you are invited out. Still another reason is that this sort of diet fails to re-educate your tastes and that is a very vital point in a healthful and intelligent system of reducing. If you are overweight you must realize that you have to change your methods of eating, permanently, for more healthful ones. Otherwise, the moment you go back to your former methods of eating, you are going to gain.

You must know the caloriv values of foods and always consciously or subconsciously (and it will become subconscious after a while) count your calories. The reducing diet you go on should be one you can continue—of course in larger amounts—after you are reduced.

You notice I have called the tomato, skim milk and hard boiled egg diet the "so-called" Mayo reducing diet. The general impression is that this diet originated at the famous Mayo clinic, but it did NOT. The system that is used there is exactly the system I teach you. I have visited that clinic since this diet started so can speak first hand.

Tomorrow—Dietetic Sins.

We Ask You

(Nebraska Farmer)

Several bills will be introduced in the present congress, the purpose of which will be to insure an adequate return to the farmer on his investment. The American Farm Bureau went on record in favor of such action. It is timely, therefore, to consider this movement.

Senator Shipstead of Minnesota introduced the first of these price-fixing measures. His bill would establish an agricultural export corporation to handle the surplus of American farm products, and establish ratios of return to the farmer based on production. The principle is the same as was contained in the McNary-Haugen bill, and in addition fashions after section 15-9 of the interstate commerce act which makes it mandatory upon the interstate commerce commission to fix the price on transportation high enough to enable the railroads to earn a fair return upon what the Interstate commerce commission find the aggregate value of railroad property to be.

Without attempting to discuss the merits or demerits of such governmental action, we invite consideration of the following questions:

1. Does the farmer want the government to have control of his business?

In answering this question, it should be borne in mind that a railroad is a public utility and is therefore held to be invested with a public interest that makes regulation of rates necessary.

2. Does the farmer desire to return to the principle of price-fixing as was applied to agricultural products during the war?

3. There are six and one-half million farmers in the United States. Who shall determine the aggregate value, not only of the land, but of all the equipment used in farming it?

It is apropos to say that the interstate commerce commission has spent more than ten years and over $100,000,000, trying to determine the physical valuation of the railroads.

4. Will an aggregate value fixed on all farm property be a fair basis upon which to determine the rate that each individual farmer shall earn upon his investment?

5. Who shall determine and how, the actual investment that each farmer has in his business?

6. What shall be the percentage to return on the investment?

7. Assuming that the percentage is fixed at 5½ per cent net, how shall this be arrived at? Who will determine a basis of costs, and what shall be the rate of wage to be allowed each farmer before the net return is figured?

8. A fair wage having been allowed the farmer outside of a nominal return on his investment, the price of land will advance very rapidly. Shall this increase in land value be capitalized?

9. If a farmer buys a piece of land for more than it is worth, shall he be allowed to earn upon that basis, or will some government agency determine a different value?

10. What shall be the basis for estimating the return on investment as between the land owner and the renter?

11. Is the non-resident land owner to be guaranteed a fixed return on his investment?

12. If the non-resident landowner shall be guaranteed a given return on his investment, why should not the same rule apply to any other investment?

13. Some farmers manage better than others. Is a premium to be placed on poor farming, or is the return to be based on the better class of management?

(Under the transportation act, any railroad that makes a larger profit than the rate fixed by law shall divide the excess with less fortunate railroads.)

14. Some types of farming pay better than others. Which type shall be used as the basis for determining returns?

The cheaper the land the lower the cost of production. Montana wheat land is worth around $20 per acre. The Nebraska farmer grows wheat on $100 per acre land. Good Iowa and Illinois corn land is worth $200 an acre up. In other corn belt states, much of it is worth half that. What shall be the basis?

15. The principal grain and forage crops outside of wheat are fed to livestock. When the price of these feeds is high, the price of livestock must be relatively high or the livestock farmer will be forced out of business. How shall a ratio covering this situation be arrived at?

16. The assured return of a profit on any given line of farming will encourage increased activity in that line. This means very naturally that the export surplus will grow out of proportion to the requirements of consumption abroad, and the surplus will have to be sold at a very heavy loss. Who will bear that loss?

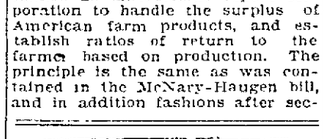

17. If the loss is to be borne by producers, will it not logically follow that the surplus gradually will grow until the level of prices will be lower than they would be under the ordinary operation of the laws of supply and demand?

17. Assuming that the government would fix a fair wage for farmers as a means of determining the cost of operating a farm, is there any reason why the government should not also fix the wages of executives and employes in all other classes of industries?

Cost of living has a very definite bearing on wages. If the government arbitrarily raises the cost of living by increasing the cost of food, can that same government ignore the demand for increased wages to meet it?

19. If this assumption is correct, will it not logically follow that the government will be obliged to take wholesale and retail charge of the conduct of all lines of business?

20. What is socialism?

The Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By Will Rogers

The worst story I heard today was told to me by Louis M. Frame, of Ocean City, N. J. Louis liked the joke so well he wrote it to me and sent it special delivery. Worse luck, and it reached me. Louie is in the real estate business, and in his ads he used a lot of very clever slogans to sell real estate.

You know any man that will buy real estate will fall for slogans, and Louie has almost as many slogans as he has lots to sell. Louie sent me this good retort on one man kidding another about wearing a beard. If you have a beard or whiskers why this will be just the remark to pull on some bird that calls you "whiskers." Here it is.

A fellow come out of a place about half loaded, and he was primed up about right and looking for trouble. He saw an old fellow driving a cab, and he had a long bushy red beard. The anti Volsteadite hollered at him:

"Ha there old Lace Curtains, I used to have a beard like that till I saw myself in the glass and cut 'em off!"

The old cabby looked at him and replied. "You ought to left 'em on, mate. I used to have a face like yours and I saw myself in the glass and I growed these."

That's what I claim was a nifty retort for even a cab man.

Choose your "B" batteries correctly

THE life of your "B" batteries depends on their size in relation to your set and on how long you listen in each day. Here are the simple rules which tell the right size "B" battery to use:

On 1 to 3 tubes—Use Eveready No. 772.
On 4 or more tubes—Use the Heavy Duty "B" Batteries, either No. 770, or the even longer-lived Eveready Layerbilt No. 486.
On all but single tube sets—Use a "C" battery.

When these rules are followed, the No. 772 will last for a year or more, and the Heavy Duties for eight months or longer, when listening at the year-round average of two hours a day.

NOTE: An Eveready "C" Battery not only increases the life of the "B" batteries, but adds a quality of reproduction unobtainable without it.

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have best cough medicine you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Manager Bucky Fools Critics; Keeps Team Intact

SENATORS' PILOT IS STANDING PAT

Manager Bucky Is Content With Club Which Won 1925 Pennant.

Snaps Fingers at Wise Boys Who Had Him Tearing Team to Pieces.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(I. N. S.)—Contrary to gratuitous advice from the boys in the back room, it seems that Stanley Harris, the well known young man, has decided to stand pat on his Washington outfit for 1926, according to advices today from the capital. He might do worse, at that.

The writer seems to remember that the Senators won the 1925 pennant in the American league with some few games to spare.

WHY BREAK UP WINNER?

Perhaps this fact lacks significance. Perhaps coldslaw is rot. I am willing to give the benefit of the same doubt. Anyhow, one usually breaks up a championship combination with visible enthusiasm and celerity.

Still you can't fool the boys in the backroom. At least not more than seven days a week.

Immediately after the Senators finished second in the world's series, they decided that something ought to be done about the Washington ball club and proceeded to do it. Using the "finger bet" system, which is infallibly economic, they obtained waivers on Roger Peckinpaugh, traded Joe Judge for an usher and arranged to give the elderly pitching staff a decent burial.

FEW CHANGES PLANNED.

Harris simply sat tight and let them rave. Those in his confidence claim that he plans few changes and that none of them are important.

The infield will be the same, Judge, SS, Nov. Harris, Peckinpaugh and Bluege, with Shirley, Adams, Myer and Joe Harris in reserve. Ruel and Severeid did the catching in 1925.

Ruel and Severeid will do the catching in 1926.

PECK TO STAY AT SHORT.

Gaslin and Rice will be two of the outfielders, with Joe Harris playing a lot of games in right field because of his punch.

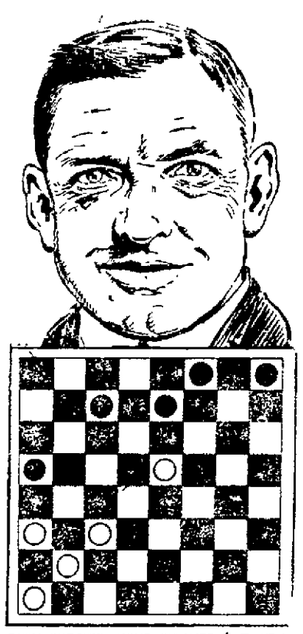

An effort, however, will be made to develop another regular from among Jeanes, McNeely and Archdeacon, although these young men have been somewhat irregular to date.

Harris, they allege, is convinced that Peckinpaugh is good for another season at shortstop and says that Peck's world series performance can be thrown out like yesterday's cabbage. He also looks for another fine year for Walter Johnson. Ogden to develop into a winner, Reuther and Coveleskie to carry right on and the Mississippi river to run east and west.

Nelson High Grabs Two From Red Cloud

NELSON, Neb., Jan. 19.—Nelson high cagesters won a doubleheader victory over Red Cloud here Saturday. The Nelson boys won 31 to 8 and the girls won by a 20 to 13 score.

'Matty' Lucky, Also Cool, As Crap Shooter

ONLY CHECKER MOVE OF MATTY'S THAT I REMEMBER—WHITE TO PLAY AND WIN

BY AL DEMAREE.

Many stories have been written about Christy Mathewson, or "Gumboots," as he was called by the players, and his checker playing. But where Matty really shone was in the good old game of "craps." I never saw and never expect to see a luckier or cooler-headed crap shooter than the "old master."

Manager McGraw, always frowned on the game on the Giants, not for moral reasons but simply because he thought some players lost more than they could afford and it interferred with their ball playing. There was a hundred dollar fine on the club for any player caught throwing the galloping dominoes. One rainy day in Chicago the gang got a big game started and, as luck would have it, McGraw was tipped off and broke in on them. Matty was on his knees just making a pass.

"Are you shooting craps, Matty?" roared McGraw. "That is a leading question, Mac," answered Matty, looking up and thinking of the $100 fine, "and I refuse to answer for fear of incriminating myself!"

Boy Phenomenon Of '90s New Prexy Of Western

Dale Darwin Gear, boy wonder pitcher of the National league back in the '90s, prosperous flour miller at Topeka, Kas., and successor to Al Tearney as president of the Western league, knows baseball from start to finish as it is given few men to know it.

Gear's baseball record, extending over the period from 1894 until 1914, during which time he was player, club owner, club president and manager at different times, is equalled by few men in the great national pastime.

Won Five Pennants.

He piloted five clubs to pennants, built two baseball parks during his career as club president and owner, participated in the organization of two leagues and after having been out of baseball from 1914 until 1923, got back into the game to reorganize the Southwestern league, of which he is now president.

Gear loves to see the kids on the sand lots playing baseball. He has always fostered organized baseball in the smaller cities of the country and believes the great game will not continue like it has unless the smaller cities stay in organized baseball. He has watched with dismay the losing struggle of class D leagues to maintain themselves in smaller cities which cannot support an organized baseball team and now, foreseeing the end of the great recruiting ground of the larger minors and the major leagues, he has advanced a new plan to save the "bush" leagues.

Mutual Aid Plan.

His plan, advanced to every club leader of the majors and minors and to Johnson and Heydler, is to have the majors foster the minors by having each major league club help sustain one class D minor club in return for the selection of the best two players annually.

He would not withdraw the incentive of the town to support the club. Under his plan no support would be forthcoming to the local club until after June 15 or July 15 and then only on condition all bills are paid up to date and the club has observed the salary limit and all other rules.

Every year every club in such small leagues closes the season with a deficit.

Then the club leaders go out and shake down the merchants for donations to clear up the deficit. He would have the major league club which is "sponsor" or "godfather" for the small club tide it over the end of the season up to say $5,000.

Incentive to Small Cities.

This would be a great incentive to the small cities, he believes, by giving them prestige. They would be the "Junior New York Giants" or junior some other club. Town leaders would proudly acclaim their affiliation with such and such a club of the majors. All the rivalry of the majors would descend naturally to their foster clubs in the class D minors.

A half dozen club owners and managers of the major leagues have written Gear saying they were for his proposition.

Gear was attending Kansas university when Lou McAllister of Fort Worth saw him pitch in 1894 at Wichita. He offered Gear $125 a month, which the lad jumped at.

That was in the spring. That fall Cleveland bid for the young pitcher and Pat Tebeau paid $2,600 for Gear and McAllister, then a fancy price for a ball player. In those days a pitcher had to throw four strikes and five balls, but Gear was going good on the long route. There were a dozen clubs in the National then and no American league, the Western being the next largest league and practically the equal of the National.

Drafted by Pirates.

In 1898 Cleveland sold Gear to Kansas City, which club he pitched to a pennant. Ban Johnson was then president of the Western league.

Pittsburgh drafted Gear in 1898, with which club he remained until 1901, although he was out part of each fall and spring completing his law course at Kansas university and taking a post graduate course at the New York School of Law.

He was with Washington in 1901 and back to Kansas City in 1902, '03 and '04 as president of the club and part owner with George Tebeau. He managed the Little Rock club in 1905 and Birmingham in '06, winning the Southern league pennant for that club.

In 1907 he managed Mobile, winning the league pennant for that club. He managed the Shreveport club in 1908, '09 and '10 and then won the Texas league pennant as manager of the Austin club in 1911. He built a new park for Austin.

Knows All of Em.

In 1912, '13 and '14 he managed the Topeka club in the Western league, and built up a circle of staunch friends in Lincoln.

Take it all in all, few players or managers have had more baseball experience than Dale Gear. He has made a success of his business in private life and is a leader in community affairs, such as the civic clubs and chamber of commerce at Topeka. He knows every owner and manager in the majors by his first name and almost every other old time player in organized baseball. As president of the Western league, he will maintain headquarters at Topeka. The new head of the league has declared that it will be his policy to help the owners of the Lincoln and St. Joseph clubs to rebuild and strengthen their teams. When Gear was a Western league manager a dozen years and more ago, he rated Lincoln as one of the mainstays of the organization. He has faith in Lincoln and has expressed his belief that the tonic of a first-division club will revive the interest in Nebraska's capital city.

GOLFING HISTORY FULL OF BOBBLES

Many An Expert Has Blown Easy Putt With Title In Prospect.

Even Bobby Jones, Georgia Wonder, Took 9 Strokes On Short Hole.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Ridiculous misplays of star golfers, brought to mind today by a veteran follower of tournaments through the missing of a ten inch putt at San Antonio by Bobby Cruickshank, show that they are not so uncommon. Scarcely a championship goes by without an exhibition almost as unbelievable as that of Cruickshank, who thereby lost a chance to tie with MacDonald Smith for first place in the Texas open with the remarkably fine score of 288.

A similar miss was made by Jesse Sweetser, formerly amateur champion, in losing one of the greatest matches in American golf to Chick Evans on the 38th hole at Mayfield Country club, Cleveland, in the semi-finals of the western championship.

SWEETSER'S BAD MISS.

Both stars had thrilled a large gallery with spectacular golf far better than usual in such first class competition—only to see Sweetser, after he had tied the match at the 36th green, miss a putt a foot long for a half on the second extra hole.

Just how such excellent players miss so easy a putt has never been explained. Nearly every great golfer has done it at least once, but he can never tell why. Then there is the rather common fault of a champion golfer taking an incredible number of strokes on some one hole in the midst of a round that otherwise is scored in par.

BOBBY HAD BAD HOLE.

In the national amateur championship at Flossmoor club three years ago Bobby Jones, who was playing par or better most of the time, winning the golf medal for low qualifying score, after a play off with Chick Evans, took nine strokes on the seventh hole, which is only 125 yards long. A pond intervenes from tee to green, the latter embossed in woods. Bobby put three balls in the pond and reached the green only on his seventh shot, including the three penalties.

His performance on this hole was even exceeded by John G. Anderson, once national runner-up, who took eleven strikes there in the same tournament. Neither Jones nor Anderson dubbed a shot. They simply shot too gingerly to avoid over-running the green to the copse.

Picks 'Em Up; Drops 'Em Hard

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(I. N. S.)—Wrestling fans today were forced to take Ivan Poddubny, Russian heavyweight, seriously for the first time since he appeared in this country, Poddubny having established himself as a championship contender last night by throwing Wladek Zbyszko in 44 minutes and 2 seconds.

Poddubny scored the fall with his pick-up and drop hold, hold, slamming Zbyszko to the mat with such force that the Pole was unconscious for five minutes.

Poddubny proved too strong for his rival and once threw him out of the ring.

Dubois Wins In Thrilling Game

DUBOIS, Neb., Jan. 19. — Dubois defeated the fast Axtell, Kas., quintet in a thrilling game here Friday, 20 to 18. Dubois scored the winning basket in the last 30 seconds of play, the score being a tie at the end of the second and third periods.

Dubois displayed a four-man offensive which Axtell could not stop. Olson featured the Axtell play, while Hildebrand and Wanrow led for Dubois. Summary:

Dubois—	Pos.	—Axtell
Wanrow	f	Olsen
Hildebrand	f	Sharp
Spohr	c	Davis
Walck	g	Nowland
Clinton	g	Hawkins

Baskets—Wanrow 1, Hildebrand 2, Spohr 1, Walck 1, Olsen 1, Davis 4, Sharpe 1. Free throws—Hildebrand 2, Olsen 1, Hawkins 1.

No other tobacco is like P. A.

YOU have no idea how wonderful a home-rolled cigarette can taste till you fill a paper with Prince Albert. Boy, howdy! P. A. is the real, blown-in-the-bottle quality tobacco. It has no second cousins . . . no "doubles." Just prove this for yourself.

Get a tidy red tin or a toppy red bag of Prince Albert. Put a pinch in a paper and do your well-known finger exercise. Notice how hunky-dory it rolls. Prince Albert is crimp-cut and stays put. Doesn't land in your lap or blow half-way across the county with the first breeze.

And . . . the real thrill comes when you connect with a match. How cool it smokes! How fragrant it is! How friendly! P. A. can't bite your tongue or parch your throat. The Prince Albert process says "No!" to that with a capital N. Try this better cigarette tobacco.

And if you sometimes get a hankering for a drag at the old jimmy-pipe with some really friendly tobacco, try P. A. this way. Prince Albert has put three pipes where there was only one before. No idle chatter, that. Get next to this big-league tobacco today.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins and toppy red bags. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

HUGGINS NAMES TONY FOR SHORT

Former Lincoln Ball Player Rated As Regular By New York Pilot.

New Yankee Aggregation To Get Into Running For A. L. Bunting.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)— A renovated Yankee team will seek the American league pennant this year.

The powerful hitting machine, which triumphed three seasons ago and slumped last year, has been rebuilt. Babe Ruth, prepared by indoor training to win back his home run laurels, still will be the main spring of the attack.

Joe Dugan at third and Bob Meusel in the outfield are the only other veterans, exclusive of the pitching corps.

Tony to Play Short.

Roger Peckinpaugh and Everett Scott, shortstops, have passed from the old fold. At short Huggins will display his new Salt Lake City star, Tony Lazzeri, another home run hitter extraordinary. Wally Pipp, first baseman, has been sold to the Reds and the niche he vacated will be occupied by Lou Gehrig, one of the finds of last year.

Aaron Ward, second baseman, is on the market. The Yankees have been negotiating for Marty McManus of the Browns. If they fail to get him or some other outstanding player, Mark Koenig, St Paul shortstop, will play second.

Catching Needs Fixing.

Schang was supplanted as regular catcher last year by Benny Bengough, but Huggins is still dissatisfied with his receivers.

The Yankees will take many recruits south and Huggins is hopeful of finding pitchers among them. Hoyt and Shawkey are on the market. Jones, Shocker and Pennock will be retained.

Reed Proclaims Larrabee State Junior Champion

OMAHA, Neb., Jan 19—The first objection to the rating of Nebraska boxing champions by State Boxing Commissioner John Kilmartin was heard yesterday in the form of a loud howl from Harry Reed, manager of Frankie Larabee of Lincoln.

Larabee's manager objects to Kilmartin ignoring Larabee in the ranking of junior lightweight. The commissioner said if asked to award the titles at the present time he would give it to either Frankie Conley or Dornie Dundee.

"Larabee can defeat either Conley or Dundee at 130 pounds, and I doubt if either of the others can make this weight," said Reed.

Plans to Claim Title.

"If Larabee defeats Tommy Grogan at the auditorium Tuesday night, we are going to press our claim to the junior lightweight championship of Nebraska and the medal that goes with the honor. The Larabee-Grogan fight is at 130 pounds. Conley and Dundee, who fight the same bill, are to fight at 133 pounds, so I cannot see where they can be considered junior lightweights."

Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, and Joe Lohman, Toledo, O., light heavyweight will meet in the main event of tonight's program in a bout scheduled to go ten rounds. The preliminary card follows:

Harold Plude, Des Moines, vs. Bobbie O'Shea, St Paul.

Tommy Grogan, Omaha, vs. Frankie Larabee, Lincoln.

Donnie Dundee, Omaha, vs Frankie Conley, Omaha.

Charles Cappell, Omaha, vs Frank Gusman, Omaha.

This Busy Week For Lincoln Hi Basket Tossers

The Lincoln high basketball tossers will stage their daily practice session Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock on the Whittier floor. The introductory workout of the week was held Monday afternoon on the same court and consisted chiefly of floor work and goal shooting, Coach Browne considering the week's schedule too strenuous for a stiff period.

Thursday evening the local outfit will defend Nebraska honors in a contest with the fast Fort Dodge, Ia., team. The tilt will follow a mix between the Lincoln reserves and the Tabernacle Christian church quintet.

Creighton Prep and Grand Island will oppose the Red and Black Friday and Saturday, making it the busiest week of the case campaign for Coach Browne's basket flippers.

Last Night's Fights.

At Philadelphia—Billy Wells, England, won on a foul from Sailor Friedman, Chicago, in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round fight; Max Rosenbloom, New York, won the decision over Rockie Smith, Battle Creek, Mich. 10 rounds; Tex McEwan, Canada, stopped George Gamas, Philadelphia, in fifth round.

At Mason City, Ia.—Clyde Drury, Coe college student, beat Jackie Conway in eight rounds; Jack Akin and Harry Smith drew in eight rounds.

At New York—Joey Silvers, Brooklyn, knocked out Sid Marks, California, first round.

At Rochester, N. Y.—"Sandy" Seifert, Pittsburgh, and Mike Conroy, Rochester, fought a draw, 10 rounds.

At Newark, N. J.—Sammie Vogel, New York, defeated Dick Conlon, Altoona, 12 rounds.

At Pittsburgh—Willis Davies, Pennsylvania flyweight champion, beat Wee Willie Wolf, champion of Scotland, 10 rounds.

At Hartford, Conn.—Jack Sharkey, Boston, New England heavyweight champion, knocked out Mexican Joe Lawson, Columbus, O., two rounds.

Open Golf Winners

Harry Cooper, left, and George Von Elm who won first and second places respectively in the recent $9 000 open golf tournament in Los Angeles. Cooper turned in a score of 279 for the 72 holes and Von Elm 282 for the 72 holes.

Saints Sell Little Nick To Houston

ST JOSEPH, Mo., Jan 19—Nick DeMaggio sun field player for the Saints for the last two years and voted the most valuable member of the squad last season has been sold to the Houston club of the Texas league. No purchase price was made public.

In the spring of 1924, when Joe Mathes took charge of the Saints, he brought with him from Beaumont of the Texas league Nick DeMaggio, five feet seven inches tall. Nick cavorted in left field for St Joseph that year and remained here when Mathes went to Des Moines and won a championship last summer. Now Joe is at Houston and purchased the little Italian from the Saints. Nick undoubtedly was the best field in the Western league. He covered more territory and was a surer fielder than any of his larger opponents.

Good at Making Runs.

With the stick Nick hit .293 last year, but was on the bases more than the average hitter. His ability to get walks made him a valuable man for the lead-off position held by him two years while with the Saints. He scored 147 runs for the local club last year.

When chosen by a committee as the most valuable player on the Saint roster last year, it was presented with a wrist watch a duplicate of the one given Stan Harris, manager of the Washington Senators.

An earlier deal with Houston sent Claude Davenport and Harold Hall to the Texas league. Both are pitchers, the former being six feet four inches tall. He and DeMaggio composed the long and short of the Western league. The combination possibly will be the long and short of the Texas league.

Basketball Secrets.

BY SOL METZGER.

WHEN RECEIVING TAP

Some basketball players, particularly forwards, when their signal is given to receive the tap immediately "telegraph" to the guard covering them that the ball is to be tapped to them. They begin to maneuver in order to mislead their guard. An intelligent guard realizes immediately that all he has to do is to keep his man out of position when the ball is tossed up. As a result he breaks up such a tap play.

A forward should always take the same position before the tap and keep his eyes on the ball as in the illustration on the left. One method common to forward that gives such a play away is for them to glance out of the corner of their eyes to locate their guard as in the illustration on the right. In short a forward should never take any position or act in any way that will tip off his opponent that he is to receive the ball.

WORLD'S RECORD IN DOUBLES.

F. Wright and A. Lutz of Chicago, rolling Sunday in the Interstate bowling tournament at Aurora, Ill., got into the world's record class with a doubles total of 1 351. It was a new mark in the Interstate bowling records. Wright, turning in 224, 243 and 290 games, totaled 757. His teammate ran 183,229 and 182 for a total of 594. Some score, but think what it would have been if Lutz has been as "hot" as his team partner.

PLATTSMOUTH IS SITE FOR BRIDGE

B. A. George Says it Is Best Location For Free Structure.

Would Send Traffic To and From East On a Straight Line.

A proposal having in view the building of a free bridge across the Missouri river at Plattsmouth for the benefit of eastern tourists and Iowans coming to Lincoln was launched Tuesday morning by B. A. George, chairman of the good roads subdivision of the chamber of commerce. Backed by the members of his committee and by other interests, he intends to bend every effort to bring to a realization his desires, he said.

According to Mr. George, there is no problem facing Lincoln and the people of the eastern section of the state that is more important than the bringing to Plattsmouth of a free bridge. It would be the proper connection between the territory to the west of the river and the states on the east, he said.

The county commissioners of the state, meeting in Omaha recently, approved the construction of four free bridges across the Missouri, Mr. George said, but they did not go far enough. "They should have included Plattsmouth along with Blair, Omaha, Rulo and one other town."

Launching of the proposal for a bridge by Mr George is the result of a discussion of the plan at the meeting of the executive committee of the Nebraska Good Roads association Monday afternoon at the chamber of commerce. No action was taken, however.

Only Logical Place.

According to Mr George, Plattsmouth is the only logical place for a bridge connecting the east with the west, over the Harding highway. This thoroughfare is already definitely fixed as far as Red Oak, Ia., and tentatively established to Nebraska City.

Routing the road via Nebraska City or Omaha, he contends, will divert motor travel on a wide detour from a straight line which it does not care to make. Many do not make it, preferring to cross at Plattsmouth on the ferry, Mr. George says.

"This proposition is one which I have been studying for many months," Mr. George said. "It should and can be put across, and the business men of Lincoln through the chamber of commerce are the ones who can do it.

"There are a great many elements entering into the consummation of the project but everything is shaping to that end. About the only thing needed now is the undivided support of the people in the towns between the river and Lincoln, including Plattsmouth, to bring it to a realization.

"I realize fully the difficulties that will be encountered. They can be overcome, however, and Harding highway travel diverted to Lincoln over a straight line.

"As the first new step in the direction of bringing the bridge to Plattsmouth I expect soon to be asked to speak to the business interests at Plattsmouth, and towns between that city and Lincoln. In this address I will explain fully what has been accomplished, even of the possibility of the state buying the present railroad bridge across the Missouri."

To Adopt Marker.

Impetus was given to the proposal by Mr George Tuesday when it was learned that there is a likelihood of Plattsmouth being America's fourth city to adopt the milestone marker project. The chamber of commerce there has been approached and it only remains for that organization to name a date when Lincoln men will go to Plattsmouth and explain both projects. Towns between Lincoln and the Missouri river city will be visited immediately afterward.

In his report to the chamber of commerce Mr. George included reference to the work done by the committee on the bridge project, and the need for such a crossing. He also covers other activities of the subdivision in connection with roads.

Lincoln Auto Club Endorses Proposed Milestone Marker

The milestone marker was unanimously approved in a resolution adopted Monday by the board of directors of the Lincoln Auto club. The arterial thoroughfares were also approved. The resolutions follow:

"Resolved: That the Lincoln Automobile club go on record as being in favor of and heartily endorsing the arterial stop boulevards now in effect throughout the city, and compliment the street department for its efforts in bringing this about. The success of the same is proven by the fact that such a high percentage of automobile owners abide by the stop buttons."

The milestone marker resolution: "Resolved: That the Automobile club endorse the movement by the city for the Lincoln milestone monument, and offer a $10 subscription toward same."

Subscriptions to the marker Tuesday noon had reached a total of $289.

Dr. Aitken Urges Study Of Poetry By Business Men

The study of poetry is a saving grace and every business man should study it, Rev. Walter Aitken, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church, told the Cosmopolitan club at its noon luncheon Tuesday at the Lincoln hotel. He was speaking on "The Value of the Study of Poetry to the Business Man."

Every business man should study poetry," the speaker said, "not as a business, but as a pleasure and for the good it will do. Poetry is a saving grace for any man."

Declaring that the study of poetry brings to man a great light, "and no man can study it honestly and be a pessimist, Rev Aitken quoted from Dante, Shakespeare, Browning, Ella Wheeler Wilcox and other poets, pointing out the beauties of each passage as he gave it.

CLAIM FARMERS LOSING HEAVILY

Witnesses At Rate Hearing Tell Of Nebraska and Kansas Conditions.

Burt County Man Says Mortgage Indebtedness Is Increasing.

KANSAS CITY, Jan 19.—(AP)—The average farmer of Nebraska and Kansas will be forced off the farm unless his financial condition is bettered, witnesses testified here today at the interstate commerce commission hearing on the plea of western railroads for higher freight rates.

J. E. Hardesty, farmer, stock raiser and banker of Pratt, Kans., declared many farmers have lost their life's earnings in the last five years. He testified in Pratt county there had been some liquidation of indebtedness but that it has been entirely at the expense of upkeep and equipment of the farm.

"Present freight rates on apples and other fruits are about equal to what the farmer receives for the shipment," Mr Hardesty said. "What we need is means of distribution whereby we can exchange our wheat, corn and livestock with those who produce other commodities that we use. This must be done by increased prices for our products or lower cost of production."

H. L. Webster, Tekamah, Neb., president of the Burt county farm bureau, presented statistics showing expenditures, sales and returns from 1,700 farms in that county.

"Many farmers went broke trying to feed cattle," he said, "and our county has a larger number of farm mortgages than ever. The net loss of farmers in that county in 1922 was $709,291, which was less than losses in other sections of the state."

The witness suggested that the situation could be changed by relief from the present high freight rates.

C. A. Randall of Lincoln, Neb., who owns 1,000 acres of farm land in Madison county, Neb., testified that the average farmer is not in as good condition as in 1913 or 1923, for the reason that he has larger obligations and an increased cost of production. He added that he owned a farm in the Big Horn basin of Wyoming, which showed such a deplorable loss that he was ashamed to produce the figures.

Minatare Request Granted By Board

"Authority to re-construct the telephone service at Minatare, as asked both by the Plate Valley Telephone company and by the mayor and people of the town, and to put a 75 cents to 1 dollar increase in charges into effect is granted in a finding of the state railway commission, made public Tuesday morning.

The subscribers want a central energy type of plant put in to replace their old metallic magneto service. Although both company and people asked the change, the commission delayed its order until data concerning the new rate had been submitted.

Although willing to allow construction of the new type of service the commission notes in its findings that if either the company or the people at Minatare had wished to continue with the old type of service, no change would be ordered.

Famous Cody Diamond Gone

GREELEY, Colo., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The famous Cody diamond, said to have been given to Col William F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill," by an European monarch, has disappeared.

The setting, which held a six and one-half carat diamond, was discovered to hold nothing but a piece of glass yesterday by S. J. Loney, collector for the county treasurer's office.

The substitution was discovered during an appraisal of the assets of the defunct Northern State bank here.

The gem was supposed to have laid untouched in a safety deposit box in the bank since Cody died, nephew of the Indian fighter, put it up as security on a loan several years ago.

VOTE FUND FOR AMERICAN PART IN ARMS MEET

House Approves Appropriation of $50,000 For Delegation Expenses.

But One Vote In Opposition; Two Offered Amendments Are Rejected.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—By a vote of 359 to 1 the house Monday approved a resolution to authorize the appropriation of $50,000 to defray expenses of American delegates to the preliminary disarmament conference arranged by the League of Nations.

Representative Connery, democrat, Massachusetts, cast the single vote against the resolution which now goes to the senate for final action. Mr. Connery did not explain his opposition.

The resolution compiled with request made by President Coolidge, who, in a special message, explained that the appropriation would permit acceptance of an invitation by the council of the league to attend the conference which is to be held at Geneva.

Two amendments to the resolution were rejected by the house on points of order. One by Representative Fish, republican, New York, sought to have placed on the agenda of the conference a resolution to consider means of outlawing any nation waging a war of aggression, while the other, by Representative Berger, socialist, Wisconsin, proposed that the "president suggest to the conference the necessity of revising the Versailles treaty."

Chairman Porter Explains.

Chairman Porter of the house foreign affairs committee, which reported the resolution, said that while he favored the proposal by Mr. Fish, the amendment clearly infringes on the treaty making powers of the president.

"Its approval would create the impression abroad that there were differences between the president and congress," he added, urging that the resolution be adopted unanimously, since opposition, even in the "slightest particular," might be misunderstood or perhaps distorted by those in foreign countries not familiar with "our government."

Mr Berger said he offered his amendment as he believed there cannot be substantial reductions of armaments or any peace unless the Versailles treaty is scrapped.

Technical Force Scott Air Field Loses Third Man

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Scott Field technical force lost a third man Monday when Harry P. Lister, a civilian foreman fabric workers, resigned effective February 28.

Lister declared he was resigning because of dissatisfaction with conduct of the field's repair shops and because of failure of air service authorities to tell him disposition of charges made against him at a military board hearing last November.

Lister and Edward R. Boland, another civilian employe testified in substantiation of charges made by A. Leo Stevens, veteran aeronaut, that materials used in assembly and repair of airships at the field were of inferior quality and incompetently handled.

Stevens had also endorsed the views of Lieut. Col William Mitchell. Stevens and Boland have resigned as a result of the board's recommendations.

Taylor Fined On Assault Charge

Earnest Taylor, charged with assault and battery, was found guilty by acting Municipal Judge W. A. Hawes Tuesday morning and was fined $25 and costs.

Taylor was charged with having assaulted his wife a few hours before she gave birth to twins. Witnesses who testified against him were Etta Taylor, his wife, Flora Conklin, his mother-in-law, F. W. Corning and Dr. W. H. Slattery, who attended Mrs. Taylor.

Taylor denied guilt when arraigned.

SCHOOL BOARD TO SELL AN ADDITION

Homesite, at Thirty-second and Randolph, Platted Into 23 Lots.

Lefler Reports New Randolph School Ready For Pupils Next Monday.

Sale prices of the five-acre Homesite addition between Randolph and F streets and Thirty-second street and Elmwood avenue, which has been platted into twenty-three lots, were approved by the board of education at its Tuesday morning meeting. The plat is to be referred to the city for approval.

Five of the lots, facing Randolph, are 54 by 146 feet; nine facing Thirty-second are 50 by 135, and nine facing on Elmwood avenue are 50 by 135.

Terms of sale call for a minimum initial payment of 10 per cent of the sale price and a minimum monthly payment of $10 plus interest on the unpaid balance at 6 per cent.

Recommendations for enlargement of the high school were presented to the board with a summary of the problems involved, as outlined by Superintendent M. C. Lefler at recent meetings. The recommendations were referred to the board's architects.

The plan calls for housing 2,200 students in place of the 1,500 for which the building was designed. A greenhouse is to be constructed for use of the botany department, and the curricula in non-academic courses is to be enlarged. The amount allotted for the expansion in the budget is $100,000.

The request of banks for refunds of 1925 taxes were referred to the board's attorney, R. O. Williams.

An award for calking and weather stripping for the Whittier junior high school, amounting to $496, was awarded the Chamber Metal Weatherstrip Co. The purchase of a G. M. C. truck at $2,901 was authorized with an allowance of $600 for an old truck in trade.

Superintendent Lefler reported that the Randolph school building would be ready for occupancy by January 26 and that the upper floor of the Hayward building was in use now. The lower floor will probably be ready in two weeks, he said.

The following elections were made: Gabrielle McCabe, $1,100; Gladys Marshall, $1,200; Jessie Good, kindergarten assistant, $900; Kathryn Tait, half time, $50 a month; Alvina Reider, half time, $80 a month.

Resignations were: Arletta Jane Shaw, Mrs. Ella G. Woten, Wilma Snyder and Helen Hoffman.

ANNULMENT SUITS GROWING POPULAR

Six-Month Delay On Divorce Actions Thought To Be Underlying Cause.

Suits for annulment of marriage have become increasingly popular in District court within the past few weeks. In less degrees, they have been so ever since last July when the law went into effect that imposes a six-month delay on would be divorces.

As annulment suits may be heard within about five weeks after filing, it is supposed generally that some of those brought recently would have been filed as divorce suits except for the six-month law. But J. H. Broady, the district judge who has charge of the domestic relations and juvenile problems this year, may make the path hard for those who seek freedom by the annulment route.

"As a general thing," he stated, "I am against divorce and even more against annulment actions. It looks rather queer for an annulment suit to be brought and then not have the defendant make an appearance. There is much chance for collusion in such cases."

Two grounds on which annulment suits may be brought are: That one of the parties made the contract when he or she was under age and without first receiving parental consent; and that the ceremony was performed when one of the parties was already married.

The rush of divorce hearings expected in District court after January 1 has not materialized. No hearing in cases filed since July 1 has been possible until now, and quite a number are on the docket. Yet not a one has been set for hearing in Judge Broady's court so far this year.

W. L. Gove Named Assessor College View and Grant

William L. Gove was appointed by the county commissioners Monday as assessor for College View and Grant precinct, to fill out the unexpired term of D. K. Edmondson. The village board of College View recommended that Charles A. Williams be appointed but Gove was recommended by twenty-two petitioners.

The $38.25 claim of the First State bank of Hickman for alleged illegal taxes was laid by indefinitely, by the commissioners.

Allan A. Besch's claim for $12.75 against the county, as the result of an accident east of Lincoln Christmas day, was refused.

A contract for about 175 barrels of lubricating oil to be supplied by the Standard Oil company at varying prices, during 1926, was approved.

Market Quotations

GRAIN MARKETS.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 19.

WHEAT—Some of the leading speculative traders in what changed over the buying side today, and with increased purchasing also the part of the mills the market went rapidly upward, especially in the final hour. Export demand was fair and it was asserted that the Canadian wheat pool had disposed of large holdings at Buffalo and elsewhere. Corn, which had been depressed at times was rallied by wheat strength.

Wheat closed unsettled 1¾ to 3c net higher, corn unchanged ½c up and oats at ⅛c to ¾c.

WHEAT—Helped by firmness of Liverpool quotations, the wheat market here tended upward today during the early dealings. In this connection, some significance was attached to reports that higher prices were being asked abroad for Argentine offerings although of poorer quality than usual. Notice was also taken of comment that the combined visible supply of Canada and the United States at present is only 115,000,000 bushels, against 122,000,000 a year ago. Chicago opening prices ⅛ to ⅜c higher, May (new) $1.75@1.75⅝ and July $1.52@1.52¼, were followed by a slight dip and then by a rise higher than before.

CORN—Improved weather conditions made the corn market easy. After opening at ⅛c off to ⅛c up, May 84⅛@84¾c, corn underwent a moderate general sag.

OATS—Oats were responsive to wheat strength. Starting unchanged to ⅛c higher, May 45@45⅜c, oats held near to initial figures.

PROVISIONS—Foreign buying gave strength to provisions, despite lower quotations on hogs.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan 19.

Stock prices turned reactionary late today when a selling attack, launched against the motor shares and other industrial issues, wiped out most of the gains scored on an early advance. American Can broke 6 points and reactions of 1 to 4 points took place in Sears Roebuck, Baldwin, Pullman, U. S. Steel and American Smelting.

Resumption of the upward movement of prices in today's stock market, was interrupted at intervals by bearish selling and profit-taking. Pool operations were stimulated by a reduction in official call money rates to 4 per cent, loans in the "outside" market being quoted as low as 3½. Short selling was aggressively conducted in the belief rumors on the announcement that an official inquiry into recent mergers would begin here next month. Renewed weakness of United States alcohol was associated with unconfirmed rumors of lower prices and loss of contracts. Public utilities were heavily bought in anticipation of important merger and dividend developments. American Water Works and Public Service of New Jersey each selling three points above yesterday's final quotations while several others sold 1 to2 points higher. Special buying also developed in several specialties, international Business Machines soaring over 6 point and South Portican Sugar, Savage Arms and National Biscuit selling 3 points higher. Heavy liquidation of motors was resumed in the early afternoon with Hudson and General Motors the principal targets.

Public utilities gave the best demonstration of group strength in the early trading. Public Service of New Jersey advanced two points to 91, the highest price ever recorded by the present no-par stock, and American waterworks, Philadlphia company, and Standard Gas and Electric moved up a point or so before the end of the first half hour. Nash Motors jumped 4½ points and White Motor climbed 2¾. A good demand also was noted for Foundation company, Howe Sound Allied Chemical, DuPont and Fairbanks Morse. Foreign exchanges opened steady, demand sterling ruling around $4.85⅞ and French Francs, at 3.75 cents.

Ward Baking B was sold in blocks of 5,000 to 10,000 shares, forcing it down four points. The decline was generally attributed to the announcement the federal investigating of the baking merger would be resumed here again on February 8. Louisville and Nashville, National Biscuit, International Telephone and Telegraph, International Business Machine, Punta Alegre Sugar, American Cand U. S. Castiron Pipe were strong features. Call loans were unchanged at 4½.

The closing was heavy. Total sales approximated 1,500,000 shares.

HEAR NUGENT IN ALUMINUM CASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press)—About four months elapsed between the times the federal trade commission offered the department of justice evidence against the Aluminum Co. of America, in which Secretary Mellon is interested, and the time the department assigned an investigator to examine that evidence.

This was disclosed today by Chairman Nugent of the commission, before a senate committee which is investigating whether the justice department moved, with diligence in inquiring whether the aluminium company violated Federal court consent decrees.

Chairman Nugent said it was after the department had assigned an investigator on February 10, 1925, that the committee reversed itself, by a 3 to 2 vote, and refused to make available the evidence voluntarily furnished by the aluminium company without the written consent of officials of that company.

Nevers Planning School Transfer

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 19.—(I.N.S.)—Ernie Nevers, whose football prowess added to the fame of Stanford university, gave him a backfield berth on the mythical all-American and earned him a pocketful of money when he became a professional, may enter the University of Wisconsin in quest of a degree next fall.

Friends whom Nevers has been visiting here said today that he never have gone west for his education if he could have found a job to help him through Wisconsin after he had completed high school in his home town of Superior.

"Now that he can pay his way through in comfort, Nevers hopes to realize his old ambition of graduating from Wisconsin."

MANY SITES ARE OFFERED

in looking over the different tracts that are considered suitable, before making a choice. One of those that impresses the board favorably on first sight is 20 acres South of Norma', owned by W. H. Weese, a farmer near Havelock.

Must Build Near Lincoln.

The Hastings chamber of commerce and H. S. Westbrook of Dunbar wrote to the board asking if their communities might not be considered in relocating the dependent children's home. They were referred to the legislative act appropriating $75,000 for the relocation, which specifies that the new site shall be near Lincoln.

The board does not want to spend more thane one-fourth or one-fifth of the money for land, as the rest will be needed for constructing buildings and purchasing equipment. It may, however, buy a tract that already has some buildings upon it if they can be used to advantage in housing inmates and raising live stock and poultry.

Following is a list of the proposals submitted to land owners and their representatives:

Minerva's Mail

TAKE YOUR TROUBLES TO MINERVA

The Adolescent Stage.

There is a time in everyone's life when good advice falls on deaf ears. That period is usually in the adolescent state just when boys and girls need guidance the most. They need love and home parties and advice, subtly given.

Cars and extravagant allowances are not necessary. They can't get their right mental and physical development without parents who know food values as well as mind values, and money values.

I know these things, and so do you—but H. R. who wrote the following letter, doesn't. And I'll deliver no lecture to him. He doesn't need it or want it, but I'd like to give him some of the love he's missed through the loss of his mother. Perhaps if she had lived her boy would have been working or studying to use up some of his spare energy that is being squandered on sex. And perhaps if she had lived the father would have been more interested in his home and child. As it is he is neglecting his son. He is giving him presents and money that are more than he can handle intelligently.

And some day, if this boy gets out of bounds, all of the friends and neighbors will say, "And to think what a good, kind father he That's what the younger generation do with their freedom. They abuse it, etc.

Yes, that's the line you will hear.

But there will be a few who will know that this boy had more than he could carry. You'll know that too much freedom and money is as bad as too little—worse, maybe.

As for me, I'd like to give him a bit of the home life he's missed. And I'd like him to know that I'm pulling for him strong, because if he wins out, gets down to work and study, he'll be accomplishing twice as much as the ordinary boy. The odds are against him—but maybe that will make him fight all the harder.

Dear Minerva: I have read your Mail for some time, but I have never written to you before.

I have read your articles on petting and kissing, but I am not going to argue about it because nearly everyone else does. All I am going to say is that I pet and kiss all I want, and if a girl won't give me a goodnight kiss, I dont go out with her again if I can help it. I hate good girls.

But as I have said before I didn't write to discuss petting. I am seventeen and the girl I go with is fourteen. She is very pretty indeed with dark curly hair and blue eyes. She's a flapper, she uses powder but does not need rouge. She knows more about sex than most girls of eighteen. She knows more than any girl I have ever gone with before and I have gone with lots of different girls ever since I was fourteen. We discuss sex and she doesn't get shocked at everything I say. She smokes and drinks but doesn't get stewed. She's a wonderful kisser and all the boys I go with like her, but I love her.

She's a flirt, Minerva, and when I get serious she kids me along, that's what makes me mad. I know she likes me but she won't say so. I have told her again and again I loved her but she laughs at me. I have never been in love before.

When I was sick not very long ago she was very kind to me. She's like that to everyone. But as soon as I got better again she was her old gay self again.

She goes with other boys, and I get jealous. I have tried to go with other girls but oh, Minerva, I love her so. I guess you think I am a crazy kid, but I have no one to talk to. My mother is dead. My father is very kind to me but he is busy and cannot listen to my nonsense. He knows her and likes her. I am considered good looking and have money and a car. I dont see why she can't love me as I love her. What shall I do, Minerva? Yours sincerely—B. R.

To Our Boys.

Dear Minerva: I have read your Mail for years and think it splendid.

I am not asking help. I don't think there is any help you could give. My letter is an appeal to young men, fine young men.

A few years ago my daughter was engaged to be married to one such. And what an ideal couple people thought they would make. He was so devoted. They had both been reared in Christian homes, thus having so many ideas and ideals in common.

She had so many pretty things ready for the home they were so happily planning when he felt it necessary to postpone the wedding, and in a few months he became so indifferent that the inevitable break came.

And oh how she suffered, and does yet all too often.

She never tried to be a martyr as some girls do. She went on to college and is now self supporting. She has gone with a number of boys since for a short time but that is all. She apparently measures them all by one standard, her former lover, and they are found wanting.

Minerva why will a manly Christian young man be so unmanly in this one thing?

If they could but realize the sorrow and the heartache they cause when they woo so diligently and then cast aside so mercilessly.

As I said before, I am not asking advice. There is nothing I can do, only try and forget him, which so far seems impossible.

Won't you be a little more careful boys?

"For of all sad words of tongue or pen,

"The saddest are these, it might have been."—ONE WHO KNOWS.

CHAPTER 35.

It was five o'clock when James Hay came out of Richard Fitzgerald's office.

The hour in there had seemed like an eternity. James's usually ruddy face was pale as he stepped into the elevator that carried him down to the street

He did not turn homeward, but walked swiftly toward his office. He had business to transact here. Moreover he wanted to be alone to think.

He met his brother coming out as he went into the office-building. John stopped in surprise.

"Where are you bound?" he asked pleasantly. "You are not going back to work at this hour, are you?"

James drew his brows together in a frown of impatience.

"Why should I not go back to work at his hour?" he demanded. "It is something new for you to complain of my devoting myself too closely to business."

"I had no intention of complaining of anything," John said stiffly. "I beg your pardon!"

He started away, but a swift discretion moved James to check him. He must not anger John at this crisis.

"Jack!" he exclaimed. "forget my grouch, will you? I've just come from a talk with my prospective father-in-law. And, as I could not take it out on him, I took it out on you."

"That's all right," John rejoined easily. "I'm sorry you've had a bad quarter-of-an-hour."

"It was an hour, not a quarter of one," James complained ruefully. "If you're going up the street I'll walk a little way with you. Then I must go to the office to see to some work that I left unfinished." He fell into step at his brother's side.

"Can't the work wait until tomorrow?" John asked kindly, glancing at his companion's pale face. "You look all in, if you'll excuse my saying so."

I am all in," the man confessed. "However, the worst is over. The old man has given his consent to our engagement.

"Yes? It must be a relief to get an interview like that over."

The statement was calm. Surely James reflected, if John had ever hoped to win Alice's love he could not speak like this. Yet he had such wonderful self control—curse him! But he must be made to think that everything was smooth sailing for his younger brother. It would never do to arouse suspicions. It would be wise to seem to confide in him.

"It is a relief, Jack," James said in a confidential tone. "Perhaps you have thought me touchy and unreasonable lately. But you have never been in love. Wait till you are."

"I will," was the dry reply.

"Anyway, you are differently situated from me," James went on in spite of the non-committal remark. "You ,at least, have a good income to offer a girl. I have not saved, and I have not had the run of luck that you have had. So I have been sitting on a tack lest old Fitzgerald throw me out neck and crop when I asked for his daughter's hand. He did give me a grueling—old Betty that he is!—but I was able to answer his questions satisfactorily. So I am accepted after all."

"Again I congratulate you," John said. "I have never fancied that Mr. Fitzgerald would demand that his daughter marry money. As long as a chap is white and straight, and can support a wife, he could hardly ask more."

"Yet," James reminded him, "you yourself admitted that you would not want to ask a rich girl to marry you unless you were well-to-do yourself."

John flushed. "Perhaps I did say that, Jim. But when I think of you as the man, I feel differently about it. And since Mr. Fitzgerald and the girl are satisfied, I do not see that anything else makes any difference. It is, after all, nobody else's business."

James laid his hand on his brother's arm. He tried to make his voice sound sincere.

"Jack, you are awfully white to talk as you do and to forget our recent scraps. As I said just now, I have been decidedly crusty lately. I did not suppose you would overlook it so soon."

"Oh," John said hastily, "cut out the humility stuff! Let by-gones be by-gones, can't you? I guess I am not the easiest person to get on with myself. But—if I can be service to you let me know— won't you, old man?"

The pair had reached the corner of the street. James paused before turning back to the office.

"Thanks. But I seem to be getting on all right now. Things look better than they did a while ago. So long! I am going to the office, then I have to make a call. By the way, tell Aunt Kate that I will not be in to dinner, will you?"

"Yes. But you will get dinner somewhere, won't you?"

"Perhaps I will get dinner where I make my call," James said with a forced laugh. "Do not let Aunt Kate know that I am going to the Fitzgeralds, please. While the affair will be announced soon, it is only fair to allow the girl the privilege of announcing it. So mum's the word until she does."

"Surely," John agreed. "Goodbye! Don't work too late."

"I won't," James assured him, "I shall only stop at the shop long enough to sign and seal a few letters I left there. Then I will go on and make my call."

NEW FARM AID BILL IN HOUSE

Would Set Up Board To Determine Surpluses And Find Markets.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. — (By the Associated Press.)—A bill was introduced in the house Monday by Representative Strong, republican, Kansas, to establish a federal market finding board to aid farmers in disposing of surplus crops and in other ways. The board would determine the possibility of surpluses each year and find domestic as well as foreign markets for such commodities.

The board's duties would include determination of the probable trend of prices, transportation facilities and manufacturing conditions. The body would consist of the secretary of agriculture and the secretary of commerce and five members appointed by the president.

The appointed members would include experts in marketing of livestock, grain, dairy products, cotton, tobacco, fruit and vegetables.

Bodies of Four Hundred Chinese Sent Back Home

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(AP)— More than 400 bodies of Chinese Monday were started on their long last journey back to the land of facts ancestors.

Final services here consisted of an address by a Chinese preacher and the presentation of bowls of food for the journey home. It was not the mere bones to which the Chinese bade goodbye and Godspeed and for which they brought food. It was for the souls of the dead.

The 412 bodies sent back to China are those of Chinese for whose souls "happiness there is none who cares," Louis Sing of Chicago, said.

"They were brought to the cemetery here from all parts of the United States, this city being the temporary gathering place for bodies, the souls of which require being sent home. We have gone to the expense of between $15,000 and $20,000 every ten years for this purpose and the Chinese God is pleased."

Huntington Tells Wesleyan of U. S. Youth Movement

Dr. Harry Huntington, university pastor of the Methodist church, addressed the students of Nebraska Wesleyan at the chapel hour Monday morning, upon the subject of "Flaming Youth."

"There is no youth movement in America comparable to the youth movement in Europe," he said. The youth of America are complacent They have sufficient food, shelter, and clothes, and bright prospects ahead Yet there is a probability of the youth of America becoming the promotors of a great ideal. I feel since the conference of Evanston that the world has begun anew."

In a review of the conference, the speaker said the first part of the week was devoted chiefly to criticism of the church. But Thursday afternoon of the convention, the attitude of the conference took a strong trend toward constructiveness. The question was not, "What shall we do with the church," but "What can we do to help the church?" By the end of the conference, this group of young people had made a set of resolutions that, in the mind of the speaker, mark the beginning of a new era.

ADMITS POISONED SEVENTH HUSBAND

Already Facing Murder Charge, Mrs. Christy Says Killed John Ebert.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Jan. 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Confession that she poisoned her seventh husband, John Ebert at Newell, W. Va., two months ago, was made to police Monday by Mrs. Laura E. Christy. She is being held here on a first degree murder charge for poisoning her eighth spouse, the Rev. William E. Christy here last week.

Confession was made verbally, officers said, the woman admitting she administered the poison to Ebert in a capsule, which she substituted for medicine prescribed by the attending physician.

"I gave him poison because he was mean to me," police said she told them.

Mrs. Christy changed her story of the poisoning of Christy, police said, declaring she administered the poison to the minister on a knife blade, telling him it was soda. Christy was suffering from indigestion at the time.

The woman added the names of Jacob— Barnhart and Charles Graham, both of East Liverpool, to her matrimonial list of the last thirty years. Graham, who was remarried, is living here while Barnhart and five other of her alleged husbands are dead.

Prosecuting Attorney R. M. Brookes said he would announce soon whether he would ask the appointment of a lunacy commission to determine the woman's mental responsibility.

Gathers Material For Moving Picture Of Rough Riders

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Rough Riders who fought with Roosevelt are to answer another roll call. Herman Hagedorn, director of the Roosevelt Memorial association, left Monday on a trip through the southwest to round up veterans of the regiment and to get material from them for a motion picture of "Teddy's" fighting days.

Mr. Hagedorn also hopes to find a man who looks enough like the Roosevelt of those times to impersonate him in the picture, which will be made by the association in collaboration with the Famous-Players-Lasky corporation.

"The story of the Rough Riders is one of the richest, most human and most attractive episodes in American history—he most strikingly American," Mr. Hagedorn said. "I want to get the story straight in facts and spirit. I am, therefore, going to hunt the Rough Riders who have yarns to tell and hear directly from them the part they played."

The quest, he said, will lead him into Texas, Arizona, Oklahoma, New Mexico and California. The hardest task, Mr. Hagedorn said, will be to find a man like Roosevelt, both in appearance and manner.

Eat it!

That's the only test of ketchup

Does it smack of the garden? Do you get the flavor of fresh-picked, sun-ripened tomatoes—the tang of rare spices? Does it put an edge on your appetite—add zest to your food? Is it rich and thick instead of watery? Is there an appealing, satisfying taste you've never found before?

Then it must be Heinz—for that is the way Heinz Ketchup is made and the reason it is made that way, and tastes that way.
